By CHARLES W. CORDDRY

DALLAS, Tex. (UPI)—The Air Force disclosed today that it hoped to start developing "soon" a military orbital space station that could stay aloft indefinitely with men aboard.

Such a station was pictured as a key element of a future "military patrol" that would defend American interests in space.

The aspirations were outlined by Lt. Gen. James Ferguson, deputy chief of staff for research and development, at the Aviation-Space Writers Association's 25th annual meeting.

He described an orbiting station that would be visited and supplied by ferry spacecraft operating from earth. One such vehicle would be the two-man Gemini capsule which is supposed to be launched late next year.

He looked on the station as "a natural focus" for the military part of America's space efforts. It would combine in a single vehicle—"a container in space"—a means for achieving many important capabilities sought by the Air Force.

The station could be boosted into orbit by the Titan III rocket now under development. It will lift off with more than two million pounds thrust, compared with 360,000 in the Atlas that sent astronaut L. Gordon Cooper aloft May 15.

"We are sure that we need to provide some protection for the nation in this realm" of space, Ferguson said, and "we are also convinced that the defense role in space will require some manned systems."

In preparation for its future space operations, the Air Force also disclosed today that it plans to train student pilots at suborbital altitudes of 200,000 feet instead of beneath 50,000 feet as at present.

That plan was announced by Col. James W. Little, pilot training director of the Air Training Command at Randolph Air Force Base, Tex.

Emergency Farm Loans Are Reported Approved

The county office of the Farmers Home Administration received offical word from the U.S. Agricultural Dept. this morning that application for emergency loans to farmers had been approved.

Donald Corliss, supervisor of FHA for El Paso, Teller, Elbert and Lincoln Counties, said he has not yet received instructions as to exact eligibility for the loans.

Application for the emergency loans was filed about two weeks ago by County FHA officials as a result of drought damage to crops, particularly wheat, cropland and pastures.

Unofficially, it is expected that the maximum emergency loan will be $35,000 and all loans made at the rate of not more than five per cent.

Corliss said the emergency loans are strictly supplemental intended to assist with other types of credit.

Application for the emergency FHA loans was made upon the recommendation of lending agencies in the four county area, country agents and officials of the Agriculture Stabilization Conservation Service.

In addition to the four counties in this area, the emergency loan program has been extended to farmers in Adams, Arapahoe, Baca, Bent, Cheyenne, Crowley, Custer, Douglas, Huerfano, Jefferson, Kiowa, Kit Carson, Las Animas, Otero, Prowers and Pueblo counties.

Congressmen Map Probe of Soaring Sugar Prices

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A congressional subcommittee today mapped an investigation into soaring sugar prices and the government tried to discourage housewives from hoarding.

Sugar prices leaped as high as 83 cents for five pounds and grocers in some areas put purchase limits on sugar when their sales suddenly doubled.

But the Agriculture Department assured housewives there is plenty of sugar "either in hand or in sight" to meet national needs.

Chairman Wright Patman, D-Tex., of the House Banking Committee said late Thursday he had ordered a subcommittee on consumer affairs to begin hearings on the price increases early next month.

The price increases involved a complicated world sugar situation. Trade sources said the loss of Cuba to the free world was a major factor, added to crop failure last year in many countries.

Newcomer Firm Creditor List Reported Filed

A list of 2,000 creditors and stockholders of the Joe Newcomer Finance Company, which has declared itself insolvent, was filed Monday in U.S. District Court by Fred Betz Sr., court-appointed trustee for the company.

The document, totaling 126 pages, lists creditors holding both demand notes and other accounts payable, stockholders and other claims. Part of the list was termed "outstanding bills" of the company.

Largest items cited included $3,249 owed to El Paso County for the second half of 1962 real estate and personal property tax; $2,640 to KRDO Radio and TV for advertising; and $767 to the Gazette Telegraph, for advertising.

Betz, in filing the list, acted to meet requirements of Chapter X, U.S. Bankruptcy Act, under which the company is trying to reorganize. Col. Thomas B. Malone, a retired Army officer, has

Pope Reported Feeling Better; Begins Retreat

VATICAN CITY (UPI) —Pope John XXIII, reported feeling better after blood transfusions for his internal bleeding, today began a nine-day retreat of rest and prayer.

Doctors kept watch for the third consecutive night in a lighted studio near the room where the 81-year-old pontiff slept, but they were believed less worried about an immediate crisis than about the long run.

Vatican sources said "the prognosis is not unfavorable" for the present, now that the Pope seems to be overcoming the weakness that forced him to cancel a scheduled audience Wednesday.

They said his trouble appears to be a lesion in the stomach lining which is causing the bleeding. They suggested that the lesion may be an ulcer, rather than cancer as has been widely reported.

The transfusions of the past few days were made necessary by heavier bleeding Monday and Tuesday, they said. The problem

LONDON (AP)—Three masked men slugged a watchman today and got away with 40 bars of gold worth $560,000.

Fireman Hurt In Battling Springs Blaze

The house of Willie J. Morgan, 17 E. Las Animas St., was severly damaged by fire this morning and Lloyd Chamberman, a member of the fire department, suffered a wrist cut on broken glass. He was taken to St. Francis Hospital.

The fire department reported that the fire was caused by careless smoking. There was no one in the house when the fire was discovered and a fire alarm turned in at 9:48 a.m. The entire interior and all contents of a bedroom were destroyed by the fire and there was smoke damage and some fire damage to other parts of the house. Companies 1 and 4 fought the blaze.

Cuban 'Death On Wheels' Hit in Report

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Officially, they are "mobile courts" but the Cuban people call them "death on wheels."

This new type of court is taken by truck to spots where anti-Castroites are caught, and usually decrees death, Dr. Hector Carrio, a lawyer who recently fled Cuba, said today.

Comprising the courts, Carrio said, are five men named by Fidel Castro's militia and usually without legal knowledge.

"After a short procedure, they carry out the penalty asked by the prosecutor who always is a Communist lawyer," said Carrio.

Cuba May Get Increased Aid From Russians

MOSCOW (UPI) — Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev today appeared to have won a diplomatic victory over Communist China by gaining Cuban Premier Fidel Castro's public endorsement of the Soviet position in the ideological dispute with Peking.

In return, Castro got a new pledge from Khrushchev that "an attack on Cuba would be considered an attack against the Soviet Union." Western diplomats said he apparently got more during his four week stay in the U.S.S.R. They believe Khrushchev

Cuba Rated Full-Fledged Satellite of Soviet Union

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Through his richly ballyhooed visit to the Soviet Union, Fidel Castro has apparently converted Cuba into a full-fledged Soviet satellite.

If this means he is now going home to Havana, loaded with Soviet medals, to launch aggressive Communist operations against other Latin-American countries, the world may well face another and far graver military crisis than that of last fall in the Caribbean.

For President Kennedy has made clear to the Communist leadership that peace in the Caribbean can be preserved only under two conditions. One is that Premier Khrushchev must not ship nuclear rockets to Cuba again. The other is that Castro must avoid hostile actions against neighboring countries.

The assumption in high Washington quarters is that Khrushchev wants to preserve Castro's Cuba as a showplace of Communist conquest far from the shores of the Soviet Union. If this proves to be correct, it is expected that Khrushchev will keep the impulsive and erratic Cuban prime minister under a tight leash indefinitely.

In the course of farewell ceremonies for Castro in Moscow Thursday, Khrushchev renewed his previous pledges to come to Cuba's aid if it is attacked. He

Children Guard Cuban Prisons, Report Claims

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ten-year-old children armed with machine guns are serving as guards at dank, rat-infested Cuban prisons, according to a report of the Inter-American Human Rights Commission.

The 2,000-word report released Thursday said the treatment of the estimated 60,000 prisoners in Castro jails was "humiliating, oppressive and despotic."

One girl said there was no sunlight in the prison, and "the place was full of big rats, mice, mosquitoes, flies, cockroaches and frogs...I woke up with my body all covered with blotches from bites."

The report said testimony from prisoners "specifically indicated that the complaints were more serious concerning the treatment of female prisoners."

The girl was one of them.

A woman told the commission during an investigation in Miami:

"Mothers in prison were not allowed to see their sons who were over 7 years old. Jailers considered the boys over this age are men. Therefore mother prisoners cannot be visited by their sons who have reached their seventh birthday."

Crippling Cold Snap May Wipe Out Northeast Crops

By United Press International

A crippling cold snap shattered low temperature records across the northeastern portion of the nation today and threatened to wipe out millions of dollars worth of tender fruit and vegetable crops.

State police said farmers at Erie, Pa., were "burning everything they could get their hands on" in a frantic effort to ward off damage to lush groves of grapes, peaches, apples and cherries.

The president of one of the four largest wineries in central New York said the skidding temperatures may wipe out the $100 million grape crop.

Temperatures tumbled to 26 degrees at Olean, 27 at Elmira, 28 at Utica and 29 at Poughkeepsie, all in New York.

New York City set an all-time low record for the date with a 39-degree reading. Albany, N. Y., marked a 31 - degree reading, breaking the previous low of 33.

The mercury fell to 30 degrees at Pittsburgh, breaking the record for the date by two degrees. Some areas in Pennsylvania recorded 26-degree readings.

Commercial tomato growers in Ohio's Miami Valley, a $200,000 toll of this year's crop already taken by skidding temperatures, looked for more losses today.

The story was the same in corn fields and home gardens across the upper Midwest and Ohio Valley.

Heavy rains fell in Wyoming and Florida during the night. More than 1½ inches fell at Daytona Beach, Fla., and more than an inch was dumped on Big Piney Wyo.

The Weather Bureau said heavy thunderstorms would break out today over the Texas Panhandle and across the high plains of Kansas and Nebraska.

Elsewhere, mostly fair weather was the rule although unseasonably cool weather was expected to dominate the Southeast as far down as southern Florida.

$22 Million Peak Region Military Work Okayed

Military installations in Colorado will receive $22,371,000 under the new Defense Department budget with the lion's share of the appropriation coming to the Pikes Peak Region, as approved by the House Armed Services Committee in Washington today.

Installations in the immediate area will receive a total of $15,042,000 for various improvements and additions at local bases.

The North American Air Defense Command (NORAD) will receive $7 million for operational facilities at the NORAD underground COC headquarters now under construction in Cheyenne Mountain.

Also approved was a $677,000 appropriation for operational facilities and an additional 200 family housing units at Ent AFB.

Ft. Carson came in for the lion's share of the state's military post appropriations with $7,355,000 for operational, training, maintenance, supply, community and utilities facilities.

Other state appropriations included $974,000 for troop housing and 100 family housing units at Lowry Air Force Base, Denver and $1,204,000 for utilities at the Pueblo Army Depot.

U.S. Government Asks Injunction Against Wallace

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government asked the courts today to prohibit Gov. George Wallace of Alabama from interfering with the enrollment of Negroes at the University of Alabama.

Atty Gen. Robert F. Kennedy said the step was taken in a complaint filed in U.S. District Court at Birmingham, Ala.

Kennedy said the purpose of the action was to set up an immediate court test of Wallace's announced position of "legal resistance and legal defiance" of a court order for the admission of two Negroes to the university.

Judge H. Hobart Grooms ruled Wednesday that the two Negroes, Vivian J. Malone and David M. McGlathery, were to be admitted to the University June 10.

Groom's ruling in the federal court at Birmingham was followed by a statement by Wallace that he planned to bar their enrollment personally.

PORTSOY, Scotland (AP)—After being silenced for a month, the 70-year-old town clocked will start ringing again tonight.

It was hushed because tourists complained it interfered with their sleep, chiming every quarter hour.

Some 1,720 residents—just about the entire population—petitioned the council that they'd become so accustomed to the chiming they couldn't sleep because of the silence.

Two Everest Climbers Suffer Frostbitten Toes

By ALAN M. KENNEDY

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP)—The American Everest expedition asked today for an emergency helicopter flight to take Bardy C. Bishop and William F. Unsoeld to a hospital in Katmandu. They got to the top of Everest Wednesday, Bishop by the south col, Unsoeld by the west ridge.

A radio report from the base camp said they were frostbitten on all their toes during a night spent without shelter 28,000 feet up on the mountain following the summit climbs.

Thomas F. Hornbein and Luther G. Jerstad escaped serious frostbite so far as he knows, expedition leader Norman R. Dyhrenfurth radioed.

Unsoeld, from Corvallis, Ore., made his climb with Hornbein, from San Diego, Calif. Bishop, from Washington, D.C., and an employe of the National Geographic Society, which sponsored the expedition, climbed with Jerstad, from Eugene, Ore. The world's highest mountain never before had been conquered from the west ridge, the route Unsoeld and Hornbein took.

It was the first time any nation had had four men on the peak of 29,028-foot Mt. Everest on the same day. The four barely missed each other at the very top, but Bishop and Jerstad finally discovered the other two had crossed over the peak and were coming down the south col.

The four met below the main summit at 9 p.m. Wednesday. In

Way Cleared For Two-Man Space Work

GLENWOOD SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI)—An aerospace engineer at Denver's Martin Co. said Thursday the successful Mercury Project flight last week of Astronaut L. Gordon Cooper cleared the way for first flight tests of systems to be used in the Gemini space program.

Robert W. Ellison, physicist from Martin's Titan missile-building plant, told the Colorado Public Health Association convention the 2-man project "is moving full speed ahead in all phases."

"Flight tests of the systems to be used in Gemini are expected to begin at Cape Canaveral next month," he said, and the first flight test of the Gemini space capsule, an unmanned suborbital ballistic shot, tentatively is set for this December.

The Denver-built Titan II is the booster vehicle for Project Gemini, which is the second stage of the U.S. program to place two men in space.

The three-day convention was to conclude today.

Wheat Lids Would Have Been Nixed Anyway in Vote

By OVID A. MARTIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Department officials said today returns show that the Kennedy administration's tighter wheat control plan would have been rejected at Tuesday's nationwide grower referendum even if small producers had not been allowed to vote.

Until this year, farms with allotments of 15 acres or less were not eligible to vote because penalties of the control program did not apply to them.

The returns show that if the vote had been limited to states with the larger commercial farms, the outcome would have been the same. However, officials said, the percentage of the vote against the plan would have been smaller.

Not a single important wheat state gave the plan the 66.7 per cent yes vote needed for adoption. The closest was North Dakota with 65.8 per cent. Kansas, the top producer, voted only 41.8 per cent in favor.

Before the referendum there had been predictions that the newly enfranchised small farmers would defeat the plan over the vote of the larger producers.

Federal Dairy Control Hopes Reported Killed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A dairy industry leader said today defeat Tuesday of a plan to tighten federal wheat controls "definitely kills efforts to impose mandatory dairy controls."

E. M. Norton, secretary of the National Milk Producers Federation, said in a statement that dairymen also are opposed to rigid controls. He said the wheat referendum results made it certain dairymen would not accept quotas.

He said the time is opportune for congress to test the effectiveness of a voluntary dairy reduction program proposed by his organization. It would change federal milk marketing orders to permit dairymen to reduce total production of milk without losing a share of the fluid milk market, which offers a higher price than does markets for manufacturing milk.

Under the present setup, any change in dairymen's delivered supply in such markets is reflected in his share of the top-price market.

The Kennedy administration proposed mandatory dairy controls last year, but has endorsed a voluntary approach this year.

Silver-Backed Certificates to Be Retired by Bill

WASHINGTON (AP — Congress has sent to President Kennedy one of the less-noticed items on his 1963 legislative program—a bill to ease the pinch caused by the government's increasing demand for silver.

It authorizes the Treasury to retire its present $1 and $2 silver certificates—including the $1.5 billion in the familiar $1 bills—and replace them with federal reserve notes.

The 1.3 billion ounces of silver now held to back up these bills then can be used to meet the steadily increasing demand for coins and to fill requests for the metal from the Defense Department and other agencies.

Sponsors of the measure said that it would take the government out of the silver market for the first time in 30 years and permit a free market.

New England senators from states with silver-using industries strongly supported the bill. They said it would stabilize the market and remove the artificial influence of the government.

However, a bloc of western mining state senators opposed the measure. They said it would not solve the government's silver problems, except temporarily.

But their efforts to amend the measure were beaten down. They did not oppose the repeal of the silver purchase acts, conceding these were outmoded.

These laws once were land marks to western senators, but the silver mining industry has dwindled in importance.

Gambling Debts Declared Uncollectable in State

DENVER (UPI)— Colorado gamblers can bounce checks for gambling debts in Nevada— and Nevada interests can't collect on them in Colorado, a Denver District Court judge ruled Thursday.

Dist. Judge David Brofman dismissed a suit against Isador Wedgle of Denver. It was filed by Universal Credit Bureau of suburban Lakewood in behalf of the Hotel Sahara in Las Vegas.

The collection agency claimed Wedgle owed the hotel $1,866 because of bad checks.

Wedgle testified he told "the cashier and the various managers of the gambling room at the hotel that the checks would not be covered because of insufficient funds, and I asked them to hold them.

"These checks were made out as direct payment for gambling losses incurred during my stay there and I felt it was not a legal and just debt."

Brofman pointed out Colorado has had a law against enforcement of gambling contracts since 1864, and such a "well established policy" will not permit such a collection.

NEW YORK (UPI) — "The Blacks," record-holder for an off-Broadway drama, has passed its 750th performance at the St. Marks Playhouse. It opened in May 1961.

Sharp Increase In Prices of Sugar Reported

NEW YORK (AP)—Sugar prices are climbing like crazy and no one seems to know where it will end.

The head of the Agriculture Department's sugar policy staff Lawrence Myers, says the market is in a state of panic.

A commodity that in 1961 was worth two cents, and which was excluded from the United States except under rigid quota systems, is being pursued with ardor at about 12 cents.

That's what a pound of raw foreign sugar costs at dockside New York these days.

The American Sugar Refining Co. announced Wednesday the latest hike in the wholesale price of refined sugar: By $1.75 to $16.80 per 10 pounds in the Northeast. The price was about $10 in January.

The five-pound bags of sugar that sold for about 55 cents in the supermarket last year are tagged at 69 cents and up.

The 360 degree turnabout from depressed to premium prices involves several factors. Weather has been bad for Europe's beet crop. Cuba's crop has been far below normal. Demand, meanwhile, has been growing rapidly. Sugar is one of the first luxuries people in emerging nations seek.

The domestic crop generally is all right, but traditionally it is only about half enough to meet needs.

Most trade sources say there should be price relief when the fall beet crop comes in. But the general view seems to be that above-normal prices will continue for a couple of years.

Group Attempts To Rehabilitate Dope Addicts

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—A life preserver dangling over the door reads, "Shang tough."

This slang expression means "don't give up" and is the symbol of Synanon—a group dedicated to the rehabilitation of narcotic addicts.

Dr. Donald Cressey, sociologist at the University of California at Los Angeles, describes the psychology: "A group in which criminal A joins with some non-criminals to change criminal B is probably most effective in changing criminal A."

The architect of this unique project in human reclamation is an earthy Irishman named "We destroy myths here," he an earthy Irishman named Charles Dederich.

"We destroy myths here," he said.

Synanon got its name when an addict mispronounced the word "seminar" which is part of Dederich's rehabilitation program.

Dederich, 50, opened the first foundation in an old store-front building in Ocean Park, Calif., in 1958. Thirty addicts lived in the makeshift quarters.

A year later Synanon moved its headquarters to an abandoned three-story armory a mile up the beach in Santa Monica. The main house and smaller dwellings strung along the each now house 135 addicts.

Synanon has expanded its operations to include an honor camp for 17 convicts in Reno, Nev., 40 miles from the Nevada State Prison in Carson City.

A unit in Westport, Conn., has 22 members and homes are planned for San Diego, New York and Washington, D.C.

The treatment at Synanon is patterned largely along the lines of the group therapy of Alcoholics Anonymous. An addict must first be willing to quit narcotics. He comes to Synanon voluntarily and can leave when he wishes.

The approach is psychological, addict helping addict, sharing common experiences in a community atmosphere akin to a home.

The treatment embraces three stages. The emotionally shaken, physically weak addict gradually adjusts to his new surroundings. Then he works at a regular job outside the house, contributing part of his wages to the group while continuing to live at the community house.

Finally Synanon sends the member out into society after he has saved a few hundred dollars, owns a car and finds a place to live away from the tantalizing haunts of addicts.

Three Possibilities Seen by JFK in GOP

WASHINGTON (AP)—Nobody may have declared himself a candidate for the 1964 GOP presidential nomination but President Kennedy thinks Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, Gov. George Rommey or Sen. Barry Goldwater could be persuaded to run.

Kennedy put himself in the classification of the New York and Michigan governors and the Arizona senator—as men who, if their party comes to them, "will answer the call."

The three Republicans, regarded as potential rivals, have avoided saying they are available. Kennedy's statement was tantamount to announcing he will seek a second term—an unsurprising development.

The President made his observation at Wednesday's news conference only a couple of hours after Romney had told a National Press Club luncheon he wouldn't seek the nomination under any circumstances.

Significantly, Romney ducked a question as to whether he might become the favorite son candidate of Michigan Republicans who will cast 48 votes toward the 655 needed for nomination at next year's convention.

Only About 10 Million Are Soviet Party Members

By ROBERT J. KORENGOLD

MOSCOW (UPI) — It covers one-sixth of the earth's inhabited land surface, sprawls across two continents (roughly one-half of Europe and one-third of Asia) borders on 12 nations and 12 seas, and could easily hold within its borders two United States of Americas.

Its 8,602,700 square miles make it bigger than all of South America.

That is the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics — Soviet Union for short.

From its western frontiers with Romania, Hungary, Czechoslovakia Poland, Norway and Finland it stretches more than 6,000 miles and 11 times zones toward the east, where it touches North Korea and the Pacific Ocean.

At one point, on the Bering Straits, its far eastern boundary is only 56 miles from U.S. territory in Alaska.

From the country's Arctic Ocean frontiers in the north to its southern borders with Turkey and Iran and in the southeast with Afghanistan, Mongolia and Communist China is a journey of roughly 3,000 miles.

The Soviet Union with 220 million citizens, is the third largest country in the world in population behind China and India.

Its climate differences are so great that roses can be blooming in the south while temperatures colder than those at the North Pole prevail, near Yakutia in northern Siberia.

The Soviet Union also is rich in virtually every mineral and other natural resource. It has nearly one-third of the forest land of the entire world, as well as 100,000 rivers and the world's largest hydropower resources.

It is the world's first ranking producer of iron ore, coal and woolen cloth, and Europe's largest producer of pig iron, steel, electricity, cement, machines and cotton fabrics.

Along with its industrial growth the U.S.S.R. also has emerged as the world's main political and military rival to the United States.

The launching of the first Soviet artificial earth satellite (Sputnik-1) Oct. 4, 1957, carried the world into the space age.

Historically, the Soviet Union stems directly from czarist Russia, but it has grown into a union of 15 different republics welded into one nation.

Soviet citizens represent more than 100 different peoples speaking roughly as many languages. They range from slant-eyed Mongolian racial stock to blue-eyed Slavs and dark-haired Caucasian Mountain peoples in the south.

The Soviet Union's main economic accent is on industrializing what was once a predominantly agricultural country. But farming still plays a major role in Soviet life.

Since the 1917 revolution almost all private farms have been turned either into giant state run enterprises (sovkhozes) where workers are paid wages, or into collective farms (kolkhozes) where the peasants divide the profits of their joint operations.

Although the Soviet Union is no longer a "sapjtalist" country, it is not, by its own definition, a "Communist" one.

It is a "socialist" state which Soviet leaders view as sort of a stepping stone to a full Communist society in which all citizens theoretically would be provided abundantly with whatever they needed, without regard to their actual work contribution to the common good. Meanwhile, benefits are in proportion to work performed and it is illegal for one person to make a profit from the labor of another.

Thus, only the state can run any enterprise in which people are employed to make a profit.

A Soviet citizen is not barred from having private property, however. He can own his own home, buy a car and even hire someone to help him do a job, providing he pays his helper for work performed and doesn't make a profit directly from his work.

Soviet workers still are paid relatively modest cash wages. But they have numerous state-paid benefits such as completely free medical care and free education and low rents.

Pick a Russian off the street and you will probably find him an avid reader, theatergoer and sports fan.

The Soviet Union prints one fifth of the world's books. It has more than 500 professional theater companies and nearly 30 million Soviet citizens belong to sports or physical culture clubs.

Russians also are education-minded with a vengeance. More than 2.6 million students are enrolled in higher educational establishments in the U.S.S.R., almost four times the amount enrolled in Great Britain, France, West Germany and Italy combined.

Many consumer goods are still in short supply because of the heavy industry emphasis but there have been government efforts in recent years to improve the quality and variety of what there is.

Along with its efforts to raise living standards, the Soviet regime has retained old Russian habits of secrecy and suspicion of foreigners, who are barred from travel to many areas of the country.

It also has kept a tight control over what U.S.S.R. citizens may see, hear and think.

The Soviet Union is officially an atheist state — non-belief in God. Religion, but not religious instruction, is tolerated. It is attacked constantly, however, in the government press.

No foreign newspapers other than Communist are allowed on sale anywhere in the U.S.S.R. and many foreign radio broadcasts are drowned out by an elaborate network of Soviet radio transmitters.

Although the Soviet Union has a president (Leonid Brezhnev), a prime minister (Nikita Khrushchev), a parliament (the Supreme Soviet) and periodic nationwide elections in which only one candidate runs for each office, it is not this giant apparatus, but the Communist party, which really runs the nation.

Only one in 22 Soviet citizens is a party member (about 10 million in all) but their influence is enormous.

In very general terms, the party leadership decides what is to be done and then the government does it.

In many instances people who have responsible party posts also hold top government jobs as well.

Premier Khrushchev has just such a double responsibility. He is not only premier, but is first secretary of the party Central Committee or, in effect, leader of the party.

"We just gave our lawn its 2nd feeding. That took care of weeds automatically!"

That's the beauty of BONUS®—it saves you time and trouble—and cash!

When you're doing the right thing by your lawn — do yourself a favor, too. When you're giving it the second feeding (due about now) take care of weeds at the same time, simply by using BONUS in place of your usual fertilizer.

If you skipped the early Spring feeding

All the more reason for using BONUS now — without delay! First there are the weeds you can plainly see, like dandelions. And then there may be many others, hidden by the grass, simply waiting for warmer weather before growing aggressively. BONUS clears them out the easy way.

Dandelions vanish — grass grows greener

Simply pour a bag of BONUS into your Scotts Spreader and walk it around. One day you'll suddenly realize that every dandelion has vanished — and that your grass is greener, richer, lovelier.

This takes less time than doing both jobs separately — and costs you less than ⅛¢ per sq ft. So you're ahead, any way you figure.

If you want to see the dramatic effectiveness of BONUS, leave one spreader width of your lawn untreated. Then in a month's time compare it with the rest. You'll wish it looked like the rest of your lawn.

Got a lawn problem?

Take it to your Scotts Dealer. Look up his Scotts Counselor. You'll find him ready, willing and able to give you practical, helpful advice. Got a weed you can't identify? Dig it up and take it in to him. And don't be backward about asking for help. So many of the nicest lawns are Scotts lawns, not only because the products are good but because they are distributed by dealers who back them with sound advice and guidance.

This week end would be a fine time to spread BONUS

Official Criticizes Theories on Hazard

GLENWOOD SPRINGS (UPI)—A New Mexico health director said here Wednesday technological advances in occupational health would come to a "grinding halt" if a guarantee of complete freedom from hazard was required.

Dr. Thomas Shipman, health director at the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratories at Los Alamos, spoke to a meeting at the Colorado Public Health Association convention here.

He mentioned the book "Silent Spring," written by Rachael Carson. It was vaulted to national prominence by an investigation o pesticides requested by President Kennedy. He said the book was a "somewhat emotional approach" to the use of pesticides.

He said "it is probably useful now and then to overstate the dangers of technological innovations lest there be no control of them. However, he added "arbitrary demands for 100 per cent freedom from hazard can stifle any reasonable progress in occupational health and bring our technological advances to a grinding halt."

More than 250 delegates were in attendance at the opening of the three-day session of the association at the Hotel Colorado.

Folk Music Is Fastest Growing in Popularity

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The fastest growing segment of the entertainment industry is something that has been around since prerevolutionary days—folk music.

Folk records sell in the millions. Folk festivals are popping up all over the country. Folk musicians have moved out of the coffee houses and into the bigtime. Every college campus has its crews of guitar and banjo-thumping folksters, eternally hopeful of being tomorrow's Kingston Trio or Peter, Paul and Mary.

A high priest of the folk movement is Edwin Pearl, and from him I learned more about the whys and wherefores.

He operates the local Ash Grove which has spawned Bud and Travis, The Limelighters and many another top act. It is, says Pearl, the only night club in the country that regularly presents pure folk music.

By pure he means that the music is the real McCoy, with no help from tin pan alley, and the instruments are never, never, amplified. (Nothing seems to appall a true folk lover like an electric guitar.)

Pearl has scoured the hills of North Carolina, Kentucky and other regions for authentic musicians, importing some to Los Angeles virtually barefoot.

The 30-year-old native Angeleno explained that he has been running the Ash Grove for five years, and there were times when the operation was touch and go. Lately it has been all go. He admitted that the Kingston Trio was the prime force in selling folk music to the masses, though like all purists he disapproves of their commerical style.

The reason for the upsurge of folk?

Pearl offered this theory: "The appreication of ethnic origins usually skips two or three generations. I believe we're going through a reaction to the trend started after the First World War—the movement to the cities.

"People who left the farms and hills had no great interest in the native music of the areas they came from. But after a few decades of city life, there is an urge to return to the simple, unsophisticated elements of life in a less complicated era."

Cuba May Get Increased Aid From Russians

promised new economic and possibly military aid.

The public pledges were exchanged Wednesday at a mammoth farewell rally for Castro at Lenin Stadium. Today, the two leaders were believed planning to head for the Black Sea for a rest before Castro's flight back to Cuba, expected early next week.

Castro's support was all the more significant because China used the Cuban crisis of last October to ridicule Khrushchev's policies of peaceful coexistence and demand a more militant stand against the West.

The Russians, Peking charged, are "as timid as mice" before the American "paper tiger."

Castro did not refer specifically to the Soviet missile pullout in his speech. But he lavishly praised the Russians for their willingness to risk nuclear war and imperil the achievements of the Russian revolution for the sake of tiny Cuba.

This was a direct refutation of what Peking charges. It says Russia has abandoned its revolutionary radicalism now that it has some of the comforts of an established society. According to Peking, this means the undeveloped nations seeking revolutionary guidance must turn to China.

Thus Castro's pledge is likely to have important repercussions among the Communist parties in the poorer Latin American countries. Peking has been trying to woo these parties, but they can be expected to follow the line of Castro, the one Communist in power in the hemisphere.

Western diplomats pointed out that Castro had little choice, whatever his feelings about the Chinese cause, for which he has indicated some sympathy in the past.

He can hardly survive without extensive aid. The Russians are in a position to supply this. The Chinese are not.

Pope Reported Feeling Better; Begins Retreat

now is to prevent such heavy bleeding in the future.

One way, the sources said, is for the pontiff to get more rest. For this reason, he will have no official duties until June 2, and will spend the time in spiritual meditations, reading, or whatever he chooses to prepare for Pentecost, commemorating the descent of the Holy Ghost upon the apostles.

The Pope made his last public appearance before the retreat Thursday, and the thousands who watched him at his window over St. Peter's Square were looking anxiously for signs of strain and illness.

His appearance was unusually short—four minutes. He limited himself to reciting a brief prayer and retired immediately afterward.

Although his voice was fuller than it was during the previous day's balcony appearance, it cracked once, and observers in the square who watched the pontiff through binoculars said his mouth was pinched and his cheeks appeared hollow.

New Satellite Launched by Soviet Union

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union today launched an unmanned satellite in its continuing research of space.

Tass news agency said the satellite, Cosmos 18, carried scientific apparatus "to continue space research in accordance with the program announced by Tass on March 16, 1962."

It was the fifth unmanned satellite launched by the Russians in the past six weeks, and the seventh to be launched this year. Cosmos 17 was launched just two days ago.

The recent flurry of Soviet space activity, after a layoff of several months, has prompted speculation that the Russians are about to launch a new manned space project.

Earlier this month Moscow announced it was beginning a series of test firings of long range rockets into the Pacific Ocean, presumably in connection with space projects.

Revamping of U.S. Military Setup Almost Completed

EDITOR'S NOTE — Structural change is under way at the Pentagon, military men are reported at odds with Secretary Robert S. McNamara and other civilian chiefs, the TFX contract hangs overhead like a dark cloud. Elton C. Fay, who has covered the Pentagon beat for the Associated Press for two decades, reviews the situation in the following article.

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara's vast revamping of the military establishment — its administrative organization, its chain of command, its multibillion-dollar operation—is all but complete.

Reorganization of the Navy remains to be completed. Some final moving around of offices, furniture and people in other agencies to carry out consolidation plans will continue for some months more, although the broad changes have been made.

The revamping has been done without asking Congress for new legislation, with McNamara acting under provisions of the unification law and its revisions.

Criticism by Congress members generally has been restrained.

But within the military, there have been stated objections by some officers, sharp private disagreement by others. One of the high commanders is on the way out, with McNamara opposing reappointment of Adm. George W. Anderson to a second term as chief of naval operations. And Gen. Curtis E. LeMay was given only half of a usual two-year tenure for his reappointment as Air Force chief of staff.

A deep and pervading silence has settled among generals and admirals.

Will this end disputes within the Pentagon?

President Kennedy does not think so.

"I am sure there'll continue to be disputes," he says.

The people in the Pentagon are "strong-minded men," says Kennedy, but completely loyal to their country. He says, too, that "we have to have a secretary to make the final judgment."

Some officers worry that the thrust of McNamara's reorganization is toward eventual merger of the services into one single unit.

No, say McNamara's aides. "We aren't unifying the services, we are unifying the effort."

They mention his "package" program under which each service with a similar function has been brought under central, coordinated direction. Examples are the strategic roles of the Air Force and Navy and the tactical roles of the Army and Air Force, now in a combined "Strike Command."

As a former automobile executive McNamara is a product of the industrial world. To him, the reorganization spells "cost effectiveness"—getting back the worst of investment in dollars and manpower for national defense.

In the uniformed military family, the objections are not to more effectiveness, but to McNamara's techniques.

There is a feeling in the Pentagon that the military man, including those on the Joint Chiefs of Staff, is being downgraded and by passed, that strategy is being devised by civilians and orders issued directly by civilians to field commands.

McNamara denies he ignores the Joint Chiefs of Staff in his decision-making. He was asked about his relations with the chiefs during a hearing by the House Armed Services Committee earlier this year.

He said he tries to anticipate "controversial issues" in advance and asks the chiefs to study and report their views. He then reviews their opinions and prepares a written report for the President.

"If in this memorandum my conclusions differ from those of the chiefs, I will also include the views of the chiefs, and if they are split I include the split views of the chiefs and the reasons for these views in contrast to the reasons for my own recommendations," McNamara says.

Reorganization, of course, isn't the only point of dispute that has shaken the Pentagon in these recent months.

There is the TFX.

In this argument, everybody has joined—the Pentagon civilians the military, Congress and the public.

It almost certainly was an element in McNamara's disapproval of continuing Anderson in his job and cutting down the time left for LeMay.

Three chiefs—Anderson, LeMay and Gen. Earl G. Wheeler of the Army — recommended that the contract for development of the new long range fighter-bomber for the Air Force and Navy go to the Boeing Co., the lower of two bidders.

But McNamara—supported by the civilian secretaries of the Air Force and Navy, Eugene M. Zuckert and Fred Korth — held that Boeing's bid was unrealistic and awarded it to the General Dynamics Corp.

A Senate committee opened an investigation. It is still going on. McNamara testified early in the hearing, requested an opportunity to reappear later.

Only once during the hearing has there been anything reported that resembled courtroom drama.

McNamara was described as showing emotion during one of the closed sessions, telling the senators that his young son wanted to know when he would be cleared of complaints leveled against him.

There are two versions of this incident. One said that McNamara impulsively telling the story to the senators, broke down and cried—an account denied by Pentagon officials.

The other version: McNamara, en route that morning to the hearing, told an associate that he would incite the incident as an example of the pressures which had come upon him as a result of the TFX matter.

Those who look upon McNamara as a computer-activated man—with a detailed plan for every contingency—like the latter version.

$243 Million Cut From Military Construction Bill

new homes Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara said were needed to house some servicemen now living in shabby quarters. Those homes will cost $181,519,000.

The Defense Department sent to the committee, headed by Rep. Carl Vinson, D-Ga., requests totaling $1,876,455,000. The committee whacked about 13 per cent from that total.

Defense agencies had their requests reduced nearly 76 per cent, mainly because the committee decided that a new $17.2 million intelligence building in nearby Arlington, Va., was not needed now.

The measure merely authorized new construction for fiscal 1964, but without specific authorization for projects no funds could be appropriated later by Congress.

The housing breakdown was Army, 1,727 units, Navy, 4,228 units and Air Force, 4,045 units.

In a bankruptcy petition filed April 26 with Judge William E. Doyle, U.S. District Court, Denver, the company claimed that its liabilities exceeded its assets by $346,056.67, with a total company worth of $2.69 million.

A total of $10,585 was given in the creditor list filed Monday by Betz which, he said, was based on information obtained from company records and not verified by independent audit.

Judge Doyle has set a public hearing at 9:30 a.m. June 24 in Denver's U.S. District Court for stockholders and creditors to decide whether or not to retain Betz as a trustee of the firm.

Philip Hornbein Jr., of Denver, has been employed as legal counsel in the proceedings.

Hoarders Blamed For Increase in Price of Sugar

that prices have risen 14 times this year.

A San Antonio, Tex., sugar broker, Eddie Gittinger, is among those whose gander is up. He thinks the big problem is hoarding by industrial users. Refiners should start rationing, he suggests.

"I would like to see this thing ended suddenly and leave the speculators holding the bag," he snaps.

A woman who operates a corner ice cream shop in suburban New York would like to see it ended suddenly too. She buys her sugar retail, and moaned when she saw what had happened to the five-pound bag that had cost 53 cents last fall.

"I don't know what I'm going to do," she said Thursday. "I can't pay 70 cents and still make a profit."

In Washington, D.C., the Agriculture Department said there will be ample supplies of sugar unless consumers start hoarding.

Rep. Lenor K. Sullivan, D-Mo., announced that a House Banking subcommittee she heads will open hearings into the sugar price increases early next month.

Dorothy Apruzzese of Merrick, N.Y., sympathizes.

"It's just terrible," she said. "But I'm not going to buy any bags at 70 cents. I'll wait until it comes down and use saccharin instead."

"I don't know what I'll do about the kids," she said. "Let them use honey, I suppose."

Mrs. Apruzzese, who has five children aged 16 months to 15 years, said she didn't buy ahead when the rises began.

Indications are that she is typical.

The Shop and Stop supermarket chain surveyed its stores from Manchester, N.H., to North Providence, R.I., and reported buying was normal everywhere except for an increase at one Rhode Island store.

Grocers in Chicago, Denver and other cities gave a similar report.

A Los Angeles merchant said he's seen little evidence of stock-up, but adds he rather expects some "when the news gets around."

In Midland, Tex., the price of a 5-pound bag jumped from 7 cents last week to 79 cents Thursday. In Chicago, some independent grocers are asking 79-89 cents.

The problem is worldwide. In London, the Cabinet met Thursday on the problem of prices reaching, "a quite unprecedented level." In Ottawa, the House of Commons was asked to investigate.

In the United States the impact of sugar price boosts on sugared items has been softened or delayed by longterm contract buying, stiff price competition and the fact sugar is often a minor portion of the retail price of the item. There has been some switching to non-caloric sweeteners.

An Austin, Tex., baker says he has boosted doughnut prices by 5 cents and that his $1-party cake now costs $1.10.

If sugar price rises keep climbing, stocks of sugar bought at old, lower prices will disappear and many manufacturers will have to pass along at least part of their increase.

Some food handlers say hat there could be another 50 per cent boost in wholesale prices before the fall beet crop comes in.

There is no threat of a shortage in the United States, industry spokesmen and Agriculture Department officials have insisted. It is merely a matter that the United States has been forced to bid progressively higher to get foreign sugar.

There could be a shortage in the United States, of course, comments W. H. Louviere, president of Imperial Sugar Co., of Houston, if consumers panic.

"Sudden hoarding," he warned, "could temporarily tax refiners physical ability to ship fast enough to keep grocers' shelves filled."

The holdout mood expressed by Mrs. Apruzzese seems well entrenched however, judging from the cold stares and no takers at one New York shop's "stock up now" placard.

In addition, said an Atlanta, Ga. resident, the higher prices make it a little easier to do a tough job: Diet.

said that any future crisis over Cuba would be harder to solve than that of last October, when, under direct U.S. challenge, he agreed to remove his nuclear missiles and nuclear-capable bombers from the Caribbean island.

His words as to the gravity of a future crisis were reminiscent of warnings issued earlier this year by President Kennedy to the effect that any new aggressive move by the Soviet Union against the United States through Cuba would confront the world with the most dangerous crisis it has known.

Kennedy has also emphasized that any attack by Cuba against the United States or any Caribbean nation would precipitate a severe crisis. He said the same would apply to any Cuban attack on surface or air transport in the area, or any effort to export arms to other countries.

Short of some such hostile act, U.S. policy toward Cuba under the Kennedy administration is limited to anti-Castro measures using economic, political and diplomatic weapons.

This program of anti-Castro measures short of war will be a long time achieving any positive results, U.S. officials privately concede. But with the depth of Soviet involvement, now dramatized by Castro's Moscow reception, officials say that any other course would involve risk of a conflict not justified by the immediate aim of ridding Cuba of communism. U.S. authorities estimate Soviet military personnel in Cuba totals about 13,000 or 14,000 men.

Up to last October-November when the Soviet missile crisis was at its peak, Soviet military aid to Cuba in arms and equipment was estimated here to be worth $500 million. After the crisis subsided the Soviets are estimated to have sent in another $300 million worth.

Apart from the military aid, the Soviet Union has also supplied an estimated $200 million of economic assistance to Cuba. Some officials say that for many months now it has been costing the Soviet Union about a million dollars a day to prop up the Cuban economy.

If Castro won new pledges of military and economic aid during his visit, he may wish to announce the fact upon his return to Havana.

In Moscow Thursday, he appeared to be following the Khrushchev line all the way, even to making a plea for unity in the Communist camp.

Castro's Soviet visit, therefore, may be taken as marking a significant stage in the development of his ties with the Kremlin and his country's position in the Communist bloc.

Clubs' Project Brings Thanks From India

Altrusans of Colorado Springs and the USO Club, 211 E. Colorado Ave., are working on an overseas project which has brought thanks from residents in India, the Philippines and other countries.

Members of Altrusa, a women's service club, meet one day a month at the USO to wrap magazines for mailing to other countries. Names of the addresses are supplied by the Altrusa national organization.

An estimated 360 individual magazines have been wrapped and mailed in the past year under the direction of Mrs. Marcelle Thandy, Altrusa president, and USO Director Elizabeth Dickey.

K. Ramaswamy of Bangalore, India, wrote a letter of appreciation to the project workers which said in part, "I am sure that the gallant efforts of America and her people in preserving the individuality and freedom of men and nations against the Communist menace shall triumph . . ."

Mrs. Eulalia Benavent, a first grade teacher in Silay City, Republic of the Philippines wrote: "Thru your help my class will be able to read and see many things in their library corner."

Mrs. Benavent has asked for any teaching materials and Altrusa members are attempting to meet that request.

Pet Blackbird Proves Biggest Carson Chowhound

Chief Warrant Officer and Mrs. James P. West, his owners, say he'll eat anything. The bird has long been offered freedom but prefers his cage.

Mooch enjoys the home in which he came to after a losing round with the West's cat, Mr. Chip. The cat dragged the bird home, and left it for dead. How he survived is anybody's guess.

But when Mooch revived, he took the situation in and made the most of it. The Wests found a cage which became Mooch's home — and provided a sanctuary from the cat.

Indoors, he is kept in the cage, but outdoors he is completely free. But he never goes far and prefers a perch on the shoulder of the nearest human.

Last winter the Wests took him to California where a flock of blackbirds tried to coax Mooch to join their ranks. Mooch refused to budge.

The Wests wish Mr. Chip would bring home another blackbird, this time a lady type. But they aren't very optimistic. It would probably be impossible to find one who could adjust to Mooch's mode of living.

Biggest thrill for Mooch is when Richard takes him to his third grade class in Pauline Memorial School. There he revels in the attention given him by all the school children. He joins in for all the songs. The kids say he sings: "This is for the birds."

Crews Clear Peak Road for Travel

The Pikes Peak Highway was open to travel early Thursday even tho some snow and ice had to be cleared from the roadway as the result of precipitation Wednesday and Wednesday night.

Jack Sullivan, road superintendent, estimated that .10 of an inch of moisture fell, which included hail, sleet and snow at higher elevations.

He said the moisture was welcome because now the highway could be graded more easily.

Altho weather condition were on the inclement side Wednesday, Sullivan said that 229 persons went thru the toll gate.

A total of .22 of an inch of moisture has fallen in the last two days on the city's watershed on the South Slope of Pikes Peak.

Art Abbey, caretaker, said this brought the total precipitation so far this month to .59. It was overcast on the South Slope early today with the mercury hovering near the freezing mark.

Convict Writes How It Is to Be in Prison

TERMINAL ISLAND, Calif. (NEA) — The steel bars, the grilles, the snap of the tumblers —it seems sometimes that they have always surrounded you. You are a prisoner, a convict.

You analyze the words, dissect them. You think about them so much that you finally become, as it were, a prisoner of the very words which describe your social position.

In a real sense, many inmates (the figure is about a quarter million) in hundreds of state and federal prisons "are" victims of words. Unlike the metal doors which can be made to swing open for each man in turn, the word "convict" can envelop him when he steps back onto the unfamiliar sidewalks. It can hold him in a special kind of bastille when he picks up te Help Wanted section of the newspaper to indulge in that dimly remembered activity called "looking for work."

It becomes each man's own private jail, from which he is paroled, all too often, by the sheerest luck.

A program under way here at the federal penitentiary on Terminal Island is now helping men already in prison to unsnap that second, invisible cell door when they are released.

The project goes by the unpretentious name of Self Improvement Group—or simply SIG. Inmates have been gathering once every two months for more than a year to assay the complexion of the job market which awaits them.

Local businessmen, drawn from the San Pedro Chamber of Commerce and elsewhere have contributed freely of their time. At one meeting, for example, six panelists outline the needs of potential employers.

Or labor leaders carefully explain union requirements in different crafts and industries in the surrounding communities and across the nation.

Educators present detailed plans whereby a man can improve his attractiveness to employers through a program of academic study or craft training.

The SIG idea sprang from the desire of two men who wanted to see real reform take place among men confined to prison. These were a Jesuit priest, Father Prange, chaplain at McNeil Island Federal Penitentiary, Wash., and Raymond W. May, associate warden at the same institution. That was five years ago.

May later was appointed warden at Terminal Island. Under his direction the SIG program has been refined and expanded to include 150 men at a session, which usually takes place in the prison dining room.

The big question: Can an inmate succeed in unlocking that invisible door? SIG may provide the key.

U.S.-NATO Atom Strike Force Plans Announced

By ARTHUR GAVSHON

OTTAWA, Ont. (AP) — A draft communique prepared for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization Council of Ministers today set forth a four-point program to beef up the nuclear power of NATO.

At the same time, the document said the group remained concerned about the continued presence of Soviet forces in Cuba and recent threats to peace in Laos.

It served notice, too, that the 15 Atlantic Pact members stand firm on their 1958 pledge to guard the freedom and security of West Berlin against the persisting menace of a Red take-over.

As disclosed by diplomats, the program in the draft communique lays down:

1. The assignment of Britain's V-bomber force and three American Polaris submarines, with their H-weapons, to Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, supreme Allied commander, Europe.

2. Establishment by Lemnitzer at his headquarters near Paris of a deputy to take charge of nuclear affairs. The deputy has not yet been chosen although a Dutch general is being considered for the post.

3. Arrangements for NATO member states to participate in nuclear activities in Allied commands and in coordination of operational planning at Omaha, Neb., headquarters of the U.S. Strategic Air Command.

4. Interchange of fuller nuclear information from member countries, both in a military and policy sense.

The joint communique, which is expected to win formal approval of the NATO foreign ministers, said the four measures had been designed to:

"Increase the effectiveness of the nuclear capability at the disposal of the Alliance and to improve coordination and control of its nuclear deterrent forces."

The statement had been carefully negotiated between France and her partners during the past several weeks.

The draft communique stressed that NATO recognized the need "to achieve a satisfactory balance between nuclear and conventional arms."

In this context, the permanent council of the Alliance in Paris has been instructed to make further studies, in cooperation with Lemnitzer's staff, of "the interrelated questions of strategy, force requirements and the resources available to meet them."

Agreement on the nuclear force was the chief achievement of the three-day meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's foreign and defense ministers.

The new interallied force bears no name, in deference to French President Charles de Gaulle, on any internationalism he doesn't dominate.

But formation of the force under U.S. Gen. Lyman Lemnitzer, the supreme allied commander in Europe, represents a major development in the political and military relations of the Western alliance for these reasons:

1. It opens the way to a sharing of some U.S. nuclear secrets with the European allies, in the context of both weaponry and operations.

2. It gives West Germany an active nuclear strike role for the first time. That many mean new tensions with the Soviet Union.

3. It represents a tentative first step toward bringing present and future nuclear forces of the alliance under collective management.

The nuclear force at the outset will be made up of the three U.S. Polaris submarines in the Mediterranean, Britain's 180-plane V-bomber force, and fighter-bomber units of Canada, West Germany, The Netherlands, Belgium, Greece, Turkey and Italy. Two French fighter squadrons stationed in West Germany also may be included.

Agreement on the nuclear force was reached Wednesday, the conference's first day. Thursday the allied statesmen assessed the aims, intentions and policies of the Soviet Union and her Communist partners. They also ranged swiftly around the world's major trouble spots, from the Caribbean to the Indo-Chinese Peninsula.

The consensus which emerged suggested that the Communist world may be on the brink of big changes. In their view the Soviet Union and Red China are nearing a confrontation — early July was mentioned—which will show if those two giants are going to settle their political differences, break with each other or just go on bickering.

U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk urged his partners to be on guard against a sudden deterioration in the Soviet temper.

British Foreign Secretary Lord home, more hopeful, stressed that the allies must be ready to recognize and act upon any serious bid for a reconciliation.

France's Maurice Couve de Murville thought the allies would be chasing a rainbow if they believed they could influence developments inside the Soviet Union.

Gerhard Schroeder of West Germany warned against overestimating the importance of the Peking-Moscow dispute. What counts, he said, is that the Soviet military potential has increased considerably and the Kremlin has no bandoned its aims in Western Europe.

Colombia Builds New City for Homeless

By JAMES DEWEY

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Walk down the main street in Techo City and you'll come to a small drug store. Outside in blazing neon is the name "Droguedia Jacquelina."

It's a tribute from a humble Colombian family to the wife of President Kennedy and to the Alliance for Progress which has given them a home and a future.

When Techo City is finished this summer it will be complete with schools, hospitals, churches, movies, civic centers, markets and stores to supply the needs of 71,000 persons. Most of them will be from the slums of Bogota or the hillside shanty towns.

President Kennedy laid the first brick for the project when he visited Bogota in December 1961. He handed the first deed to Argenil Plazas, a father of 13, whose farm in his native state of Tolima had been destroyed by bandits.

He had been paying $30 monthly rent for two rooms and a tiny kitchen in a Bogota slum. Plazas is now paying $8.60 for a two-story home with four bedrooms, kitchen, bath, a patio and garden that all will soon be his own.

Plazas, now a second-hand clothes dealer, wrote Kennedy recently a letter the President quoted in a message to Congress. "We now live peacefully, free from misery," the letter said. "We are no longer homeless outcasts but live in dignity and freedom."

Construction is divided into three categories. The first and most important is called "aided self help." The applicant, determined by a point system designed to give priority to those who most need housing, builds his own home under supervision, makes no down payment and has 12 years to pay off his loan at low interest rates.

Soup Loving Thief Also Likes Candy

A thief who evidently likes soup out of water glasses in addition to having a liking for chewing gum and candy, broke into rant, 3436 Colorado Ave., sometime Wednesday night.

Police said 8 water glasses, 10 cans of soup, two cartons of chewing gum, an unknown amount of candy bars and approximately $3 in change was taken during the break-in. Entrance was gained thru the drive-in window.

Library Loan Time Extended

The loan period on new fiction and other regular books will be three weeks starting June 1, according to John Marshall, administrative assistant to Mrs. Margaret G. Reid, city librarian.

"And there will be no renewals under this loan period setup," he added.

As of now, the loan period on new fiction is seven days and two to four weeks on other regular books.

Starting June 1 also, Marshall said, the 5 cent per week rental on new fiction will be discarded.

These new rules will apply at the main library, the West Side Branch, Verner Z. Reed Library and the bookmobile.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

(© 1963: By the Chicago Tribune)

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Vigorous research has brought new hope to victims of parkinsonism (shaking palsy). Promising reports have appeared on the causes and results of early treatment. Cure is not possible but the breakthru may not be too far in the future.

There are three forms. The first is an aftermath of encephalitis and develops months to decades after recovery from this brain infection. The second and more common type is the degenerative, due to hardening of the arteries; it is becoming more frequent now that more and more people live longer. The third variety is found in persons between 50 and 60 years old. It begins for no apparent reason and is a real challenge to physicians and research physiologists and chemists.

The tremor and muscular stiffness that these men and women develop follow changes in certain cells located in a small center deep in the brain. When neurological surgeons destroy these pea-sized areas, tremor disappears and the muscles relax. Possible causes of these changes include carbon monoxide, manganese, and other toxins as well as certain infections and hardening of the arteries. Heredity is thought to play a role.

Most of us are familiar with the syndrome after it is well established. The typical example is the older man with marked tremor of the head, fingers, hands, and arms, who is stooped and walks with a shuffling gait. All of his actions are slow because the muscles are stiff. In addition, he has a staring or fixed expression to the face. He is not paralyzed, nor is his intelligence impaired, even tho he has difficulty with speech and writing.

All diseases have to start some time and parkinsonism usually begins slowly. A slight tremor of the thumb or index finger of one hand may be the initial manifestation.

Despite our lack of knowledge of the cause, we know the condition should not be neglected in the early stages. Muscles degenerate when not used, whereas activty and physical therapy help prevent deformities from this source. Diet also is important in maintaining strength and weight. Brain surgery helps some while others obtain more benefit from drugs.

Dr. Van Dellen will send leaflet on parkinsonism if stamped self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

Auditions Are Held for New Wife for Adams

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Som pretty upsetting news has come out of the Old West: Adam Cartwright, the soulful, dark and rather brooding son of the Ponderosa, will take a wife sometime next season.

The marriage has been arranged on a very high level—it was announced by "Bonanza's" producer and NBC—and auditions are in progress to find just the right girl for Adam. But as a veteran viewer, I wouldn't make any bets on Adam's Eve ever reaching the altar.

In the very first place, who ever heard of a married western hero? From the days of William S. Hart and Tom Mix, these brave boys in the big hats have loved their horses, their cattle, their land, justice and underdogs. Although they could get mighty attracted to the local schoolmarm or a neighboring rancher's daughter, when the windup came, they'd sadly but bravely climb back on their faithful steeds and go riding off into the setting sun.

Two years ago, a scheme to get a steady girl and perhaps even a wife ultimately for Chuck Connors, the widower of "The Rifleman," just didn't work out. The romance was destroyed by the scriptwriters who felt their typewriters were tied down. So this season they came up with a new girl for him.

Matrimony, as a matter of fact, is stultifying for more than western heroes. Originally lawyer Lawrence Preston of "The Defenders" was supposed to have a wife, but he suddenly became a widower after they shot the pilot film.

A number of performers have observed that regular roles in an unsuccessful television series have no bad effect on their careers. Now comes actor James Franciscus to prove it. He is winding up a starring role in the film, "Youngblood Hawke," just in time to start making a new television series, "Mr. Novak," a big item in next season's CBS schedule. And Franciscus was a co-star in last season's "The Investigators," which had a short, rough trip on CBS' channels.

Stanley Bush will officiate as principal of Littleton High School, Littleton, Colo., for its summer session.

Mrs. Lorraine Martin was installed in her second term as vice president of the Business and Professional Women's Club, Colorado Springs, in a candlelight ceremony held Wednesday evening at the Village Inn. Mrs. Martin served as president of the B and P.W. Club in Richmond, Mo., her former home, for two terms, 1951-52 and in 1959. The local club meets the second Tuesday in each month.

All activities in the Community Building have been canceled for the week of May 20, as the auditorum and gymnasium floor is being refinished.

Airline Chief Sees Advantage in Flying

DALLAS (UPI) — Lewis Dymond, president of Frontier Airlines, said Wednesday that what the local service airlines need is help in educating the public on the advantages of flying.

He said such small airlines also need:

—Access to larger markets.

—Improvement of service.

"I am not advocating," he said, "that we should be able to compete with the larger (trunk) airlines in all the long-range markets.

"But we should be allowed to compete in a limited manner in markets up to 400 to 500 miles away."

Dymond said the federal government helped the trunk airlines 20 years ago "when they were using about the same equipment we now use."

"All we ask," he said, "is the same considerations, the same reliefs that were granted these airlines then."

2,160 Days in School Reported as Record

LA SALLE, Colo. (AP)—Dennis Grimes made it to school every day of classes for 12 years—without a single absence.

The remarkable thing, says Mrs. C. A. Grimes, is that her 17-year-old son worked in all the normal childhood diseases during the summer months.

"I often wonder why I never got sick during the school months," Dennis said.

His graduation at nearby Valley High School this week completed 2,160 consecutive days in school without a miss.

STARTS AND STOPS

PROTECTION, Kan. (UPI) — Mrs. Glenn Maris said today a jug of water helped start and stop a fire in her car.

Mrs. Maris left a jug of distilled water on the car seat while shopping and the sun focused through the glass and burned a hole in the seat. Finding the blaze on her return, Mrs. Maris used water from the jug to put it out.

GAZETTE TELEGRAPH

Your Freedom Newspaper

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule, the Ten Commandments and the Declaration of Independence.

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

The Search for a Natural Law

Yesterday we began a discussion of morality and are limiting our inquiry into the subject at the level of inter-personal relationships.

We are taking the position, in order to examine this area, that morality is nothing more nor less than "proper conduct between persons."

Are there laws governing proper conduct between persons? We will contend that there are such laws and that our problem is to discover them. Clearly, they will not be man-made laws. They will be laws which arise from nature, and they will rise primarily from the nature of man.

We assume that man is a reality and that he has a nature which can be understood, at least within limits. We would state at the beginning that "proper conduct between persons" would have to be such conduct that, in the longest possible projection of logical inference, would not be injurious to man.

Proper conduct would have two major aspects. There would be a negative and a positive side. Moral conduct, speaking negatively, would be that type of conduct which could not possibly serve to injure man, either individually or in groups.

On the positive side, moral conduct would be such that it served to enhance the human situation, extending longevity, alleviating human misery, creating more and better means of survival, of comfort, of an abundance of the things man must have and wants to have for the purpose of being what he is.

If we are correct in our assumptions, then the existence of moral law is a fact. Man is real. He lives in a real world. His nature is a reality. It will follow that there are certain types of conduct which tend to destroy the reality of man. A simple example is murder. The murderer destroys the life of another. This is contrary to man as a reality, for when practiced certain men cease to be men.

Man lives in a real world and his nature in this world is one in which he is wholly dependent upon the natural resources of this world, upon the tools he can devise and upon the good will he can engender among others for his ability to remain as a living entity in this world.

There must be rules of conduct which will enhance these things just as there would be discernible acts of negative conduct which could and would universally injure man's chances to obtain natural resources, to employ tools and to engender good will among others of his kind.

A clear example of this latter type of conduct would be theft.

Since man must have property of certain kinds in order to stay alive, the thief reduces man's ability to stay alive. His conduct is contrary to "proper conduct between persons" even tho his action is not aimed at a person, but rather at the appropriation of goods or money that another possesses.

But we are seeking a rule of conduct that can stand any test of applied circumstances. It will serve us no useful purpose if we say that murder is improper conduct only under certain circumstances, but that when the circumstances change, then murder is acceptable. Were we to accept this line of reasoning, it would be only another minor step to declare that murder is meritorious when warranted.

The same would be the case were we to consider theft. If we take the position that theft is improper conduct under certain circumstances only, but when the situation changes, theft is justified, then we have no rule at all. Indeed, we could immediately proceed to the assumption that theft at certain times is meritorious and highly to be desired.

This now imposes upon us the necessity of coming a little closer to grips with the nature of man.

Beyond Cleverness

Intrinsic Character of Action

In order to ascertain what must be "proper conduct between persons" we are going to assert that conduct which is injurious to any single person for whatever reason, cannot qualify as proper.

This line of definitive reasoning is imperative. Were we to assume that some action which might benefit two persons at the expense of one, were a proper action, then we would have no rule at all. Also, we would have abandoned our position that proper conduct is that type of conduct which will injure no one regardless of the extent of the inferential logic employed in time.

In other words, to qualify as proper conduct, we must assume a kind of action which is universally harmless (in the negative sense) or universally helpful (in the positive sense) or possibly both. The universality of the character of the action is implicit if we wish to find a principle.

To say that a given act might be helpful to fifty persons but would be destructive of one, could not be a proper action insofar as that one is concerned. For an act to be moral and proper, it must stand the test at all points, not just at certain points.

Thus, to seek out a man, say the head of a giant corporation or the head of a state and to murder him, might provide for the advancement of all men under him by one rank or it might serve to remove a tyrant. The advancement of all these men or the freeing of them would certainly be assumed to be beneficial in each case. But the murder of the one man by means of which the advancements or the liberations were attained would preclude such an action being meritorious.

Thus, we would have to say that in such a case, tho many benefited, the harm administered to the one would make the action immoral.

The same would have to apply to an act of theft. Robin Hood might have stolen large sums from someone of means and distributed the sums to the poor. Certainly, the poor can be presumed to have benefited by this largesse. But the act of stealing from the man of means was an immoral act, for each act must be tested in its total consequences.

The best guide by means of which we can approach the possibility of a principle seems to be to test each action as it impinges upon each individual who may be affected by the action. If, at any point, injury ensues, then the act fails of total merit and at that point can be presumed to be improper and hence immoral.

Thus it would follow that proper conduct between persons must be the kind of conduct which injures no one involved, which benefits everyone involved, or both.

There is a ready-made escape valve to this rigid argument altho we will seek to reject it.

The theory has it that if the public approves of an action then it is meritorious, whereas if the public disapproves of the action then it fails.

But if we are seeking a rule arising from nature, then the popular approval or the popular disapproval of any given action has no merit at all by means of which we may judge the intrinsic character of the act itself.

The public affections are known to be entirely fickle. They ebb and flow according to emotional tides, and there is positively no reliance to be placed here. By turns, a general expression of popular opinion will take a public figure or a particular issue and love it or hate it.

Most politicians experience this situation and nearly every person of prominence has had some brush with it. So with issues. A fixed rule of conduct can never be based upon the heat or the chill of public passion.

And this would be true whether the public temper was tested in advance by a popular vote or tested after the fact by some form of referendum or recall.

The character of any given act lies within the nature of the act and is removed from popular prejudice. And for the act to be one of "proper conduct between persons," it must IN FACT injure none.

LIBERTY

If the true spark of religious and civil liberty be kindled, it will burn. Human agency cannot extinguish it. Like the earth's central fire, it may be smothered for a time, but at some time or other, in some place or other, the volcano will break out and flame up to heaven.

Backstage Battle Over Passport Boss

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON—A stormy backstage battle to oust Frances G. Knight, director of the State Department's Passport Office since 1955, is splitting Congress down the middle.

Two powerful congressional committees have become hotly embroiled in an even more sizzling clash between Miss Knight and her immediate State Department superior, Abba F. Schwartz, head of Security and Consular Affairs.

The Senate Internal Security Subcommittee is vigorously opposing Miss Knight's removal on the ground that it is being sought because of her strong disapproval of the State Department's new regulations making it easier for known Communists to obtain passports.

The subcommittee, headed by Senator James Eastland, D-Miss., is preparing a highly critical report of what is termed Schwartz' "harassment" of Miss Knight, including his reputed avowed intention to ax her by June 30.

In gathering evidence of its report, the Senate committee has held three secret hearings with Miss Knight as the only witness. She has flatly refused to inform her superiors what she was asked and the replies she gave.

So far, she has made this rebuff stick.

At the same time, the House Appropriations Subcommittee in charge of the State Department's budget, including the Passport Office, is taking a sharply critical view of Miss Knight.

In the opinion of this potent group, headed by Representative John Rooney, D-N. Y., she has been "blowing hot and cold" on issuing passports to Communists.

Also, this committee thinks very little of the new passport Miss Knight introduced. According to the lawmakers it may even be a boon to the Communists, on the ground that the new plastic passport is easier to counterfeit than the old one.

BEAUTY CREAM ISSUE

While the hassle over passports for Communists is a major factor behind Schwartz' row with Miss Knight, the Rooney committee has been apprised of several other reasons why the administration wants to replace her.

One is that she is stubbornly adhering to her own hiring policies. Miss Knight's scorn for Democratic job-seekers has apparently annoyed administration officials bent on rewarding deserving party adherents.

Another reason is a report, which the legislators also are investigating, that Miss Knight arranged for Jacqueline Cochran, noted aviatrix and Republican, to use the State Department's imposing auditorium (where the President's press conferences are held) to demonstrate to women employees a line of cosmetics she produces. Miss Cochran and Miss Knight are old friends.

State Department officials have told the Rooney committee that this unusual incident occurred during regular working hours and at the height of last fall's Cuban missile crisis. The charge is being made that the women employes were taken away from their jobs at a time when they were much needed.

In defending her action, Miss Knight told the lawmakers that she invited Miss Cochran to lecture the girls on "good grooming and body care." This was needed, she gravely explained, as they are in constant contact with the public and government officials.

While admitting that free samples of Miss Cochran's cosmetics were passed out to the women, Miss Knight, said she didn't learn of this until later. The show down on Miss Knight, expected next month, may very likely cause explosive repercussions regardless of what happens.

Powerful personages are arrayed on both sides. She has bitter critics who make no bones of being after her scalp. On the other hand, she has equally influential and staunch partisans, including Democrats.

Illustrative is Senator Clinton Anderson, D-N.M., chairman of the Space Committee, who has called her the "most satisfactory official to deal with in the whole government."

LONG CAREER

Miss Knight's government career dates back to 1934 when she was a minor employe in the late Harry Hopkins' widely controversial WPA agency. Thruout the New Deal, Fair Deal and Eisenhower administrations, she continued in a succession of increasingly important jobs until she now holds top Civil Service rating.

According to testimony before the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee, Schwartz reputedly declared his intention of ousting Miss Knight by April 1, but changed the date to June 30 upon discovering that as a Civil Service employe she could demand hearings on charges brought against her.

Schwartz, appointed eight months ago by President Kennedy as head of the State Department's Security and Consular Affairs agency, is a graduate of Harvard Law School. He was endorsed for this job by Representative Francis Walter, D-Pa., chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee. Now seriously ill, Walter has taken no part in this hectic backstage wrangle.

Schwartz is a strong advocate of the State Department's new regulations on the issuing of passports to known Communists. Previously, passports were denied for failure to submit a non-Communist affidavit. Under the new regulations, prepared by Abram Chayes, State Department legal adviser, Communists denied passports must be confronted with the evidence against them.

Much of government evidence on Communist party membership is based on secret FBI sources. The FBI is often reluctant to disclose these sources in order not to destroy their usefulness.

CAPITOL FLASHES

A Southerner who often supports the Kennedy administration holds the key on President Kennedy's youth employment program in the House. He is Representative Carl Elliott, D-Ala., who is telling House colleagues he hasn't made up his mind on this "must" measure. Elliott holds the deciding vote in the Rules Committee, which must clear the bill before it can go to the House for a vote. Two of the ten Democrats, Chairman Howard Smith, Va., and Representative William Colmer, Miss., are against the bill, with the five Republican committeemen. Seven Democrats favor the plan. The Senate has already passed the legislation.....Senator J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, is urging the White House to direct the U. S. Information Agency to make public all its polls about U.S. prestige abroad.....If Haiti's President Duvalier is still in power by the end of the week, five Latin American governments will start an intensive diplomatic drive to bring him down. That's the private report the State Department has given the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. The five countries are the Dominican Republic, Venezuela, Costa Rica, El Salvador and Honduras. They contend that after May 15, Duvalier's rule is unconstitutional.

To The Point

In Praise of the Winter

By RUSSELL KIRK

Here at my old house in Mecosta, Michigan, the hard winter is over — I think. Anyway, buds are appearing on my trees and warmer weather has appeared. The ice on our many little lakes will vanish tomorrow or next day.

Thruout much of Europe and America, the winter of 1962-63 was the hardest in many a year. When I left Spain in February, the whole country was snow covered, and the orange crops utterly destroyed. In England, the snow drifts triumphed as they had not done since the seventeenth century, or perhaps since the days of Elizabeth I.

We sand-hill savages at Mecosta are inured to rigorous winters. This northern land was uninhabitable by civilized man, really, until the potbellied stove came into its own: Mecosta has few fireplaces, they not being efficient enough to keep a family tolerably warm.

Mr. Arnold Toynbee writes that in northern regions, civilization is dependent upon a plentiful supply of fuel. The Russian steppes were long barbaric because their unfortunate denizens had nothing to keep them warm but brush; and brush-gathering required so much time that no leisure remained for the nurturing of culture.

Yet once culture has gained a foothold, and man can keep himself fairly snug in the freezing months, northern climes actually enjoy certain advantages for the life of the mind. It was so in the heyday of New England, when Yankee farmers read good books by the fireside while the snow beat at the pane: the convivial existence described by Whittier in his "Snowbound." To this day, the New England winter has sharpened the imagination of the poets of those austere states. Take Robert Frost's eerie and fascinating poem "Snow":

"It looks as if
Some pallid thing had squashed its features flat
And its eyes shut with over-eagerness
To see what people found so interesting
In one another, and had gone to sleep
Of its own stupid lack of understanding,
Or broken its white neck of mushroom stuff
Short off, and died against the window-pane."

Just so the snow pushed against the panes of my brick library this winter, while I wrote and read, not caring how the wind howled, now and then tossing more oak and birch into my fireplace, or turning up the gauge on my oil stove. As the boy Whittier, thus snowbound, saw in his fancy Ypsilanti with his patriot-bandit Greeks in their Aegean land, so I read Polybius on the Sicilian wars, or excoriated on my typewriter the folly of the Christmas assault upon Katanga.

At Bogota, in the mountains of Colombia, people never are hot, and never cold; the trees never lose their leaves; all nature, in that high altitude and equatorial latitude, is changeless. I would not willingly live so.

The procession of the seasons is to me wondrous and satisfying. And for three or four months of the year, Jack Frost can count me among his loyal crew. I do not grudge his seasonal sovereignty.

Moral Paralysis Creeps Thru Government

From Ft. Lauderdale (Fla.) News

The more that any conscientious citizen sees about many of the things going on at all levels of our government today, the more he must become thoroly discouraged over where we are heading.

To say we still have government by the people is completely misleading. The only part the ordinary people are playing in their government today is in the process of electing their officials and after that they have about as much to say about what transpires as a teetotaler at a liquor dealers' convention.

Our govednment is controlled by bureaucrats and special interests from the halls of Congress right on down thru our local units. Add these to the faceless mass of people with their grubby fists stretched out for handouts, and it is easy to see why most of our elected officials are more concerned about doing things to perpetuate themselves or their party in office than what is right and proper for the country and its future.

Right here in our own state, for instance, we are currently witnessing a perfect example of how much influence special interests exert on our state legislature. Tallahassee is reported to be overflowing with lobbyists representing these special interests and the legislators are being wined, dined and entertained at a frenetic pace as the lobbyists endeavor to line up votes for the particular legislation they are pushing.

We would like to believe that most of our legislators don't pay much heed to these lobbyists and the interests they represent. We're not quite that naive, however. The lobbyists wouldn't be in Tallahassee if their contributions and their arm-twisting didn't pay off in legislative support of what they want, and anybody who doesn't think that is true isn't very well acquainted with how things are done in Tallahassee.

Even the governor's office isn't exempt from the spoils system that dominates our politics today. It costs a tremendous sum of money to be elected governor of this state and no candidate can get that kind of money without going along with the principle that to the victor go the spoils of high public office.

Thus, it is neither illegal nor unexpected to see a governor counseling state officials to channel state business to friendly sources such as happened in the now celebrated case of Gov. Bryant advising the State Turnpike Authority to remember certain friendly banks when they got around to appointing custodians for turnpike funds.

Gov. Bryant has said it amounts to "irresponsible" and dishonest conduct on the part of a newspaper to report such a thing. But, while there may not have been anything illegal about the governor's action in this respect, it is still symptomatic of one of the great troubles afflicting our nation today which is the use of government funds and government offices as personal mediums by politicians to pay back friends and supporters for their contributions to a political campaign.

Gov. Bryant is certainly no worse than many, many others in this respect. Our national Congress is full of Senators and representatives who are so beholden to organized labor that no amount of labor union coercion or excessive use of monopoly power will cause these congressmen to give their backing to much-needed legislation to curb the power of organized labor.

The Congress is also full of men who make no bones about investigating everybody else but who rapidly back away from investigating or curbing some of the highly questionable antics of some of their own members. Congress demands that other high persons in government shed themselves of any personal holdings that might bring about a conflict of interest, but doesn't apply this code to its own members.

Perhaps we are overly concerned about all these things but quite frankly we simply cannot accept the argument that this nation is immune to the fate that has befallen other great nations in the past which have buried their consciences, let their basic moral values erode away and have lived for the day with no thought of the tomorrow.

This generation of Americans inherited a great and a powerful country. It is ours to preserve and to pass along to future generations, but the way we are going today there isn't going to be much left to pass along that isn't encumbered with a heavy mortgage of debt and frustration.

We look for leadership and economy in government and then go on asking government to do things for us which can only increase costs. We deplore graft and corruption but we sit on our hands on election day and stay home and do nothing about it.

Maybe these things are not overly important. But then again maybe they are signficant as the underlying symptoms of a national sickness that could destroy us if it goes on unchecked much longer.

No Trailer to Park

By GEORGE BOARDMAN, Ph.D.

It has been a long time since a young lady told me I could park my trailer in her front yard which makes the generous offer of Mrs. Nancy Pierce of Huntington Beach, California, doubly appreciated. The fact of the offer being made public thru the letters to the editor section of the Santa Ana Register makes me less concerned about the reaction of Mr. Pierce when he gets home and finds a strange trailer in his front yard. At this particular moment, however, we cannot take advantage of the offer because we have no trailer. Of course, Mrs. Pierce did not know my wife and I had discussed the subject of moving around on wheels when further encroachment by government reaches a certain unbearable, to us, level.

A more important item was a statement by Mrs. Pierce concerning the intention of three mothers, including Mrs. Pierce, to enroll their children in private schools. This action will immediately reduce the socialized school budget in direct relation to the number of children removed from the socialized school rolls. In our district, this amounts to something like $750 per student, per school year. Logically, enrollment of children in private schools should reduce the overall taxes for parents by an amount equal to the budgeted allowance per student in the socialized school system but socialism is never logical and it never will be.

This brings up another point which should be taken in consideration. I hope Mr. and Mrs. Pieree and the other parents involved will discuss the matter of private school education as a tax deductible item with a well qualified income tax expert. This leads me to a subject which has engaged my interest from a practical point of view for several years; I don't believe the average small business or the average professional man or woman gives enough attention to looking for ways and means of frustrating the snoopers and looters lawfully. Just a few weeks ago a young man visited us and I was able to make a simple suggestion regarding the operation of his small business which will help him to avoid certain nuisances and a small expenditure of labor as an unpaid collector for government. This brought us to a few other items and we began to examine other factors with which he might become involved in the future. This brought on an inevitable reaction: "I wonder why everyone doesn't think of these things?"

A great many people have been brainwashed into thinking of taxes as some kind of a blessing in disguise. Obviously, this prevents them from looking for entirely lawful methods of avoiding some of the taxes. In another group you will find a number of normally intelligent men and women who just can't be bothered. To these you can add the fearful, those who are afraid they may do something to upset the status quo.

Here is one illustration which may provide you with some food for thought. A very good friend of mine discussed the subject of travel in connection with his regular profession with a reliable tax expert. He and his wife bought a trailer and my friend did his work on a daily basis as they moved from city to city and state to state. The entire trip consumed more than one year and the legitimate expenses which could be legitimately charged against his income from his profession took care of a great deal of the expense involved in the entire undertaking. Now don't get me wrong; this long period of travel involved a lot of expense and all of it was legitimately tied up with his profession. He did not make money on saving taxes but he did not pay taxes on a great many legitimately deductible expenses. From his point of view, he was able to travel in connection with his profession for a year and the net cost was nominal. From my point of view, government did not receive quite a few dollars it wasn't entitled to in the first place.

A great many business and professional people would do well to give these subjects a lot of thought.

And thank you, Mrs. Nancy Pierce!

Good luck and good health to you, in Freedom.

Question Box

Question No. 233. "What test should be used to decide whether a newspaper is really an honest, friendly newspaper?"

The answer to that, it would seem, would be that the same test should be used as is used to decide whether an individual is really honest and friendly.

A really honest and friendly individual or newspaper doesn't believe he or it is omnipotent enough to refuse to answer questions about what he is advocating or opposing. He or it is not like a dictator that is drunk with power. He or it wants his or its ideas or what he or it is advocating tested by questions. And if a newspaper will not answer all questions about what it is advocating and reduce them to principles or to mathematics, it could hardly be regarded as a truly friendly, honest newspaper.

A newspaper is one of the most important things that come into the home, because it puts the individual in touch with his neighbors and the world. A newspaper that throws its columns open to have its ideas challenged before the same audience is a splendid way of throwing light on controversial questions. It does not claim to be authoritative, but only claims that it is seeking to better understand the universal laws of the universe.

The newspaper that will refuse to publish an advertisement on a public question which is to be voted on also will suppress news. And any newspaper that will suppress news to favor vested interests at the expense of other persons is not a truly friendly, honest newspaper. A newspaper that does this is a tyrannical and dictatorial newspaper and anything but friendly and honest.

Lots of newspapers refuse to take ads when they think it might hurt their cash register. These newspapers that believe man can live by bread alone think they need not try to live in harmony with the natural laws as set forth in the Human Relations Commandments and the Golden Rule. They are the kinds of newspapers that are helping to destroy this country.

The real test is a newspaper's willingness to have all things brought to light whether they agree with the publisher's ideas or not. That's the way we gain more truth, promote goodwill, understanding, peace, and spiritual and material prosperity.

Questions are limited to general human relations questions that will improve the well-being of all mankind on this earth.

CUBAN ISSUE

To the Editor:

Listening to the politicians of both parties, they are not playing politics with the Cuban issue. Heavens, no. They strictly adhere to certain principles and their ethics. But really — can they afford to stay out? That number one issue is: communism 90 miles from our shore. Here they can arouse the votes of the whole nation, not just certain sections. Kennedy naturally has a distinct advantage here. The more the Republicans stir up the issue, the greater will be the man (J.F.K.) who saves us once again from what his opponents said we faced. It is too early to do anything now, tho. The 1964 election is still too far away.

Nixon probably would have been elected if he had advanced a plan of his own for Cuba instead of just mechanically endorsing Eisenhower's Cuban mistakes. A number of Democrats certainly owe their victory in '62 to Kennedy's sudden revival and his boldness to step on "Nikita's" toes. The problem was solved, the voters thought. But we backed down a few weeks later. The President may need Cuba to stay in office next year.

Demagogy at the U.N.

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

The other day the Foreign Minister of Haiti, Rene Chalmers, came rushing to New York to try to interject the race issue into the quarrel which his boss, the dictatorial Francois Duvalier, has been pursuing with the Dominican Republic. Haiti, so he informed the Security Council of the United Nations, had determined to defend "the cause of the black peoples."

This, as the saying goes, was certainly reaching for it. What Mr. Chalmers was endeavoring to do made just about as much sense as Congressman Adam Clayton Powell makes when he charges "racial discrimination" whenever anyone raises the point of the cost of his congressional junkets around the world. Yet the Chalmers gambit was made under such circumstances that it probably served its purpose, which was to intimidate the Organization of American States so that it would not do anything about the internal situation in Haiti.

The claim of Haitian championship of Negro rights was brought to New York at the very height of the racial storm and strife in Alabama, and the Haitian government must have calculated that it could get away with any demagogy in the current atmosphere surrounding race relations in the United States. By a shrewd manipulation of emotions, the Haitian foreign minister may have hoped to make everyone in the U. N. Security Council take leave of such things as reason and the laws of evidence.

However, by all the tests of logic the scene presented by the Haitian effort to make it seem that the Dominican Republic in particular, and the Latin American members of the OAS in general, are enemies of the "black peoples" was something for a rewritten version of Alice in Wonderland. Sitting around Mr. Chalmers in the Security Council of the U. N. were representatives of Brazil, which has its own blacks, Indians and mulattoes and makes no issue whatever of "color"; Venezuela, which is not known for racial persecution; and the Dominican Republic itself, which has a mixed population of whites, mulattoes and 19 per cent Negroes. Naturally, the Dominican spokesman, Mr. Valesquez, characterized as absurd Mr. Chalmers' efforts to turn the Haiti-Dominican argument into a struggle between "blacks" and "whites."

In the circumstances Mr. Chalmers could make little headway in his palpable bid to get the Afro-Asian bloc and the Russians openly on his side. But to the casual observer of the two-day argument over the Haitian issue in the Security Council the behavior of Ghana and Russia was proof that they cared less for the issue under discussion than for making propaganda against the United States. This is one of the U. N.'s great excuses for being. We sit and take it, generally speaking.

The Russian member of the Security Council couldn't very well get caught on the hook of defending the voodooist Haitian strongman, "Papa Doc" Duvalier. But instead of decrying the attempt of the Haitians to raise the race issue where it most certainly did not apply, the Soviet representative made a big play about the time that U. S. Marines were stationed in Haiti. This had no more relevance to the issue before the Security Council than Mr. Chalmers' speech about "the cause of the black peoples." But the U. N. does not hold its members to courtroom standards of what is or what is not germane.

As for the representative from Ghana, Mr. Alex Quaison-Sackey, he went all around Robin Hood's barn to keep from saying that the Haitian foreign minister was seeing the "race question" under his bed.

At the very moment that the Haitian foreign minister was trying to use the race issue to keep his own tottering boss from being overthrown by the predominantly black population which has every good reason to object to being stamped upon and even murdered, Negro organizations were demonstrating outside the U. N. building against the situation in Birmingham.

Since Haitian President "Papa Doc" Duvalier could give the Birmingham police lessons in repression, the effort by his foreign minister inside the U. N. Security Council chamber could have been called completely raw.

But who is to say that the Haitian foreign minister failed to make mileage out of the absurdity? Or that similar efforts won't be made in the U. N. again?

Congress Said To Be Weary of Farm Subsidies

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Congress that has grown weary of farm subsidies seemed content today to let wheat farmers have a taste of the free enterprise program for which they voted.

Although the congressional attitude may change in the coming months, the prevailing sentiment today was against enactment of any legislation to moderate the consequences for wheat farmers of their refusal to submit to strict production controls on the 1964 crop.

This was so even though a handful of farm belt Republicans vowed they would "pound away" in an attempt to bring pressures on Congress to enact new wheat legislation.

The wheat growers in a national referendum Tuesday rejected President Kennedy's new control program. Only 47.7 per cent voted for it. The plan required a 66.7 per cent majority to become effective.

If no new legislation is enacted, government price supports for wheat will drop from $2 a bushel to around $1.25 a bushel at about the time that the 1964 presidential election campaign is getting under way. Moreover, only those growers who voluntarily comply with planting restrictions will be assured $1.25. Other growers will have no price guarantees.

"I don't know," Kennedy replied when he was asked at his news conference Wednesday what the political consequence of this would be for him in the 1964 elections.

House Democratic leader Carl Albert, Okla., said he opposed new legislation and did not believe that wheat growers were facing "diaster" next year. He said he doubted that as many as five city congressmen would support a new bill.

HE SCOOTS AROUND

MADISON (AP)—When Bruce Mohs applied for a motor vehicle license he was asked what kind of a vehicle he wanted it for.

"Here it is," he said, as he hoisted a gadget to the counter. It was his home-made, collapsible, 35-pound, 25-mile per hour motor scooter.

Mohs explained he carries the scooter around in his airplane for trips to and from airports.

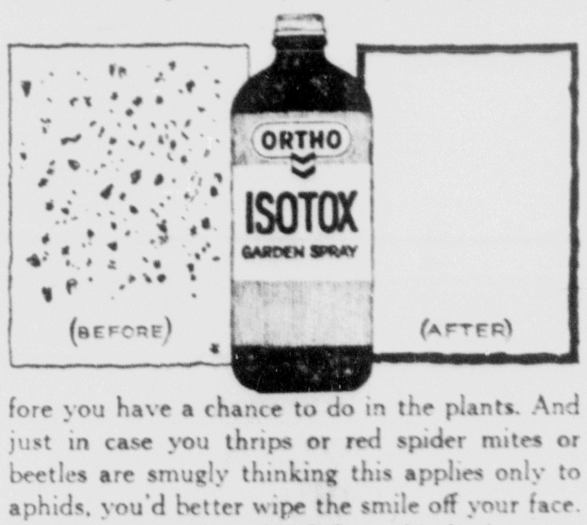
ALSO OF INTEREST TO: THRIPS, RED SPIDER MITES, LEAFHOPPERS, JAPANESE BEETLES, FLEA BEETLES, ROSE CHAFERS, LACE BUGS, BRACHYRINUS AND FULLER ROSE BEETLES (ADOLESCENT AND ADULT) CHIGGERS, LEAF MINERS, WHITE FLIES AND CERTAIN CATERPILLARS.

You are hereby notified that you have ruined your last rose, ravaged your last rhododendron, blighted your last blossom. No longer will you freely fasten on young plants and suck the life juices from tender young growth. ORTHO, on behalf of gardeners everywhere, has developed a spray that gets rid of you and your kind. Its name, so you can recognize it and run, is ISOTOX Garden Spray.

GOING... GOING... GONE
ISOTOX contains not one, but four insecticides—lindane, malathion, DDT and Tedion®. All are bad news for pests like you. They'll do you in before you have a chance to do in the plants. And just in case you thrips or red spider mites or beetles are smugly thinking this applies only to aphids, you'd better wipe the smile off your face. ISOTOX wipes out over 250 different kinds of insects.



GET OUT OF TOWN
The time you can begin to worry is in early spring when new leaves unfold and tender young growth is at its tastiest. Then wily gardeners are watching for the first visit by pests like you. That's when ISOTOX will first appear. If you're planning to arrive in the second wave, when buds begin to burst, ISOTOX will be around again. And when weather turns warm and blossoms are at their peak, you bugs can expect the worst from ISOTOX. Our advice to you is to get out of town while you still have the chance.

A PRIVATE MESSAGE TO APHID-HATERS
All gardeners who have bought everything short of a shot gun to save plants from persistent pests will be delighted with this news. All you need is a garden hose and an ORTHO Spray-Ette to protect your garden with ISOTOX. Just put ISOTOX in the Spray-Ette, and the Spray-Ette does the rest—automatically dilutes the spray with water in the proper proportion. Patented metering jets always deliver just the right amount of spray. Spray-Ettes cost $3.49, $6.45 or $9.95, depending on how big a garden you have to spray. ISOTOX, a highly concentrated liquid, costs $1.19 for 4 ounces up to $4.98 for a quart. Diluted to spray, it costs less than 6¢ per gallon to rid your garden of 250 different pests! And like all ORTHO products, it's guaranteed to do the job, or your money back.

A FRIENDLY REMINDER
While you're at an authorized ORTHO dealer buying ISOTOX, pick up some ORTHO PHALTAN Rose & Garden Fungicide to control most major diseases on flowers and ornamentals. You can spray it right along with ISOTOX in the ORTHO Spray-Ette and kill two blighters with one spray. A shrewd idea! The ORTHO people are always inventing ways to make your gardening easier.

Hunting and Fishing

By DICK MOORE

"The Colorado Game and Fish Department is working to provide topnotch fishing in Ramah Reservoir before the dam is actually completed," stated Don Wurm Southeast Region fisheries biologist last week at the damsite five miles east of Calhan, on U. S. Highway No 24. "We hope to finish placing these 22 fish harbors well in advance of the time the gates are closed and water is impounted. That way we can be assured of the best possible fish habitat for a continued production of small forage fish and food for bigger more desirable game fish," sail Wurm as he and John Stevenson, wildlife conservation officer, carried tile to an ever-growing number of harbors in an area soon to be flooded.

Ramah Reservoir is being constructed as a joint effort of the big Sandy Soil Conservation District and the Colorado Game and Fish Department for recreation and flood control.

Stevenson observed that, "recreational activities will include-in addition to fishing-picnicking and water skiing in designated areas close to the dam. A boat launching, ramp, toilets and picnic shelters enter into the plans and should provide topnotch public facilities."

The Colorado Game and Fish Commission set aside $60,000 for their portion in developing the area. Monies made possible thed attainment of land easements, rights-of-way and outright land purchases, and provided for construction of Ramah Dam.

Piles of rejected, imperfect sewer tile serve as a refuge for smaller fish and minnions allowing them to increase in size and number. Thus protected, in part, from foraging game-these smaller species provide a continuous supply of prime, natural food for game fish the year 'round. Well informed fisherman know, too, that these artificial harbors tend to concentrate hugry game fish thereby improving fishing.

The fishing report released by the Colorado Fish and Game Department this week indicates that the Southeast Region's high mountain lakes are still frozen and inaccessible. Tarryall, Antero Reservoirs are open; Arkansas River high and roily; most side streams are the same. Lakes and streams thruout lower elevations are mostly low and clear, with some extremely low. Roads are mostly dry and dusty, until reach high mountain side roads.

Anglers are reminded by the Colorado Game and Fish Department that beginning June 1, the daily bag and possession limit on trout goes from six to 10. The 10 fish limit on trout holds thru Oct. 31.

On May 25 the department's quality fishing Parvin Lake opens northwest of Fort Collins. From May 25 thru May 31 fishermen will be allowed to take six fish, any size, on files and single hook lures.

On June 1 the bag and possession limit jumps to 10 fish, but all rainbow trout under 14 inches must be returned to the water immediately. There is no size limit on other species.

During the season at Parvin, from May 25 thru Sept. 30, the lake will be open from 4 a.m. to 9 p.m., with all people fishing the lake required to check in and out at the main gate.

Thruout the season no baits of any kind will be permitted on the lake. Flies and single-hook lures are the rule, with double and treble hooks having one common shank qualifying for this regulation.

Fishermen lucky enough to tie into a lake or Mackinaw trout are reminded that in Deep Lake, Grand Lake and Twin Lakes the daily bag and possession limit for mackinaw shall be four fish with a minimum size of 15 inches. The daily bag limit for mackinaw is in addition to the regular bag limit on all other species, in the lakes listed above. Mackinaw less than 15 inches must be returned to the water immediately.

Greater Canada Geese for release in Colorado are now hatching at the Colorado Game Fish Department's experimental bird farm at Rocky Ford, from 66 wild eggs.

Goose eggs were flown to Rocky Ford from two areas in Colorado where existing flocks of the Greater Canada Goose have been developed. The first plane flight of 56 eggs were taken from nests at College Lake near Ft. Collins, April 24, 1963. Later on May 13, 1963 another setting of 10 eggs traveled via air from Bonny Reservoir to Rocky Ford.

Eggs began hatching April 2th and so far 17 highly colored, active goslings have arrived. But another three weeks of incubation are necessary before Willis Mansfield, farm supervisor, can be sure of his total number.

Since the eggs originated from wild nests in various stages of incubation, Mansfield is forced to incubate eggs of the May 3 setting a full 28 days (incubation period for waterfowl eggs).

Goslings will be returned to College Lake and to Bonny Reservoir when eight weeks of age; and then languish in pens at the waters edge for another month. Finally, as they become capable of flight in mid-August, they will be released to promote larger and better flocks.

The Greater Canada Goose is not common to Colorado. Because of their size they are highly prized by sportsmen and thereby warrant this attention under a federal Aid to wildlife research grant covering the past 5-year period.

Resident flocks are developing nicely at College Lake and Bonny Reservoir, since the use of aerators now dispel winter ice and lessen the possibility of southward migration.

Some of the last remaining prairie chicken booming grounds in Colorado were inventoried this spring by 32 Colorado State University students and their professors, Ron Ryder and Doug Gilbert. Booming grounds are the semi-permanent mating ritual areas that grouse frequent each spring.

The students divided into nine teams in order to cover nine transects in the booming ground area about 10 miles north of Wray. The purpose was to get a complete one day booming ground census and also to locate possible new grounds in the area.

The students counted 172 birds on their nine transects for an average of approximately seven birds per ground. In 1962 Assistant Game Manager Hal Swope ran a census of prairie chickens in the same area and counted an average of 26 birds per ground.

Optimism over prospects for the 1963 pheasant hunting season was unanimous among delegates from 13 midwestern states and two Canadian Provinces to the Sixth Annual Meeting of the Midwest Pheasant Council, notes Colorado Game and Fish Department Game Research Chief Wayne Sandfort in a report of the proceedings.

Sandfort and Assistant Game Manager Hal Swope attended the three-day session in Detroit during mid-April. Sandfor acted as chairman for the Council.

Says Sandfort in his report," Mild winter and normal or below normal pheasant losses, existed thruout the midwest range. Barring severe drought or other adverse nesting conditions pheasant populations are expected in increase.

"A summary of pheasant hunting seasons shows some progress is being made in pheasant management. In 1950 hunting seasons averaged 11 days in length, whereas in 1962 the average length was 35 days. Pheasant populations have thrived under the more liberal shooting."

Colorado Game and Fish Department Photographer Don Domenick spied a long bull snake in the road near Wiggins last week and stopped to photograph the creature.

No sooner had he unlimbered his camera, than the snake slithered under his car and climbed up in the frame. Domenick couldn't untangle him, so he decided to hightail it for Denver with Brer Snake thus in tow.

He avoided all stop lights until he hit 48th and Federal. Old Mr. Bullsnake took advantage of the red light to hop off his unwanted ride and skedaddle across the busy throughfare.

Undaunted, Domenick parked his car and took after the escapee with the first thing that came to hand — a five-foot snowshoe.

Snowshoes weren't made for catching things, and Brer Bullsnake probably would have escaped the device if he'd kept his tail close to the ground. But he stuck it up and got it tangled in the lacing, and that fixed him right there.

Domenick reported that when flabbergasted motorists could finally stop gawking, it only took five or ten minutes to get traffic at the intersection straightened out.

Upper South Platte Study Is Requested

DENVER (UPI) — A study for development of the Upper South Platte River has been asked by the Colorado Water Conservation Board.

Leonard Kuiper, director of the board, said he would take his request to Gov. John Love. Kuiper said the study would cost about $25,000, and would be conducted by the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation.

He said Denver would be asked to contribute $5,000, other metropolitan communities a total of $5,000, and affected farm districts $2,500.

The state would be asked for $12,500, he said.

DAIRY COMPUTER

LOGAN, Utah (UPI) — Utah State University, pioneer in IBM dairy record keeping, has attracted the interest of several surrounding states with its efforts in this field.

U.S.U. officials say machine computing has given dairymen more complete, accurate, legible and consistent records for use in managing their cows.

Miss Zola Z. Watson of Portland, Ore., director of nurses for the foundation, announced today the Laotian government has given the organization permission to operate a 60-bed hospital at Thakek, 180 miles southeast of Vietiane.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRU E

Dear Folks:

For months now . . . I have been studying the care, cures and pitfalls of growing good grass.

Topic today for those of you who must fertilize soon (and use commercial powdered-type fertilizers but do not have a spreader) is "How to spread it evenly without splotching it" . . .

I have tested five lawns (bermuda and wide blade grass) and watched people apply fertilizer by hand. One poor fellow threw the fertilizer, another one took his wife's measuring cup and spread it that way. But these two fellows had green-blue grass in "streaks" and these streaks were growing twice as fast two weeks later, some places got too much and the grass burned . . . which made their yard look even worse!

If you have no commercial spreader, may I suggest that you try my method?

Take an old coffee can and punch lots of holes in the bottom of it with your ice pick!

Fill the can with the powdered-type fertilizer and "hold the can waist high". This will allow for better distribution of the fertilizer so that it will not burn some places. By the time it lands on the grass the breeze will blow it "more evenly"! Walk up-and-down your yard and just gently shake the can.

It's a good idea to walk away from the wind when spreading it so the powder doesn't get all over your clothes.

Another tip is to take a piece of string such as comes off your laundry etc., and lay it across the yard and walk along the string. When you finish that "row" then move the string over a few feet.

But the best way I found for perfect spreading was to mix a "little" flour from your wife's pantry "with" the fertilizer! Only about two or three heaping tablespoons to each coffee can of powdered-type fertilizer and stir it with her kitchen spoon! This way you can actually "see" just where the fertilizer is blowing and falling!

After the yard is splattered and dusted "if" you "have" missed a spot it's easily seen because of the flour dust and there is no trick to going back and filling in a missed spot so all your grass will give forth at once! Isn't that tricky? (For those who use lime—because of certain conditions in the soil—this may be mixed with the fertilizer and suffice for the flour.)

Anyway, this is our solution so the spreading of fertilizer and not burning grass. And always remember to read Joe Blow's caution directions.

Are you all aware that you have to water heavily "after" spreading this stuff? Keeps it from burning the grass.

Let's get that grass green and make our neighbor envious . . . then let him ask you how you did it. —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I rub dry cornstarch on the oil spots on our wall paper. Leave this on for a while, then rub it off with a piece of terry cloth. Apply several times until the stain disappears. It works. —A friend

Dear Heloise:

For those of you who have small kiddies and serve ice cream cones in your home and they go drip, drip, drip . . .

Instead of getting baby's hands all soggy when the bottom of the ice cream cones finally mushes . . .

Did you know that you could wrap it in a piece of foil? This does not only allow the baby's hand to keep clean but as the ice cream runs down the side, Heloise, it catches the drips.

'Tis also good to carry a piece of foil in your purse so that when you go to a drive-in or the drug store, you can wrap it around the cone. —Louise Jason

BIG CHEESE

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The Wisconsin Cheesemakers Association has asked the legislature to spend $35,000 to help pay for a 24,000-pound cheddar cheese for display at the World's Fair in New York next year. The cheese —9½ feet in diameter and 7 feet high—would be billed as the world's largest.

It would be made in Denmark—Wisconsin, this is.

Annual Poetry Awards Made At Meeting of Round Table

The Poetry Fellowship devoted the last Round Table discussion of the season to the annual Nellie Burget Miller poetry contest Tuesday evening.

Winners of first place were Raynette Forister with "Night Snow" in the serious verse contests, and Agnes Crawford with "Family Pet" in the light. Other winners in the serious class were Mildred Edgar (second) with "Beethoven" and Joan W. Zink (third) with "On the Wind." In the light verse, Margaret Davis (second) with "Annual Upset" and Myrtle Allen (third) with "Non-Conformist."

Because the judges were not unanimous and every one of the fifty-one entries had at least a nomination for honorable mention, awards were made on a point system. Those who did not win a prize but came nearest were (serious): Dorothy Bartlett with "White Dust;" Claire Gilstrap with "Western River;" Inez Hunt with "The Sound of Circles"; Elizabeth Weilein wtih "Woman With Spools"; and Margaret Davis with "Crossroads"; and (light): Dale Merritt with "Modus Operandi," Mabel Darby with "Fantasy" and Jack Connor with "First Parade."

Imogene Merritt was contest chairman. The contest has been held annually for the past eleven years as a memorial to her mother, Nellie Burget Miller, who founded the Poetry Fellowship and was Poet Laureate for 29 years.

The judges, not announced until this meeting, were G. Spencer Bezley of the English Department of Cheyenne Mountain High School; Chris Richards, Denver poet, wife of Dr. Robert F. Richards who teaches at University of Denver; and Maj. John R. Gault of the English Department of the Air Force Academy, who attended the meeting. Dorothy Stott Shaw read their letters of general comment and criticism, which were valuable and much appreciated informal essays on poetry writing.

The Poetry Fellowship is open to anyone with an interest in poetry. The Round Table discussions are held in the Grace Episcopal Church, usually the second Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. They will be resumed in September.

Girl Scouts Plan Camp At Sky High

From May 24 to 26 more than 650 Girl Scouts and 100 leaders from 39 troops will be camping. Each troop will provide its own food and camping gear, set up its own campsite by lashing necessary articles and erecting tents and plans its own activities for most of the camping time. Many of the girls will be working to complete requirements for proficiency badges while others will just enjoy life in the out-of-doors.

On Saturday night there will be an all-camp campfire and songfest, which has been planned by Mrs. James Banks. Religious services will be provided for the camp on Sunday morning.

Full fire protection will be provided. Explorer Scouts and two adults headed by Mr. John Polliard will maintain a twenty-four hour fire watch and fire protection equipment will be provided by the U. S. Forestry Service. There will be a registered nurse on duty plus a first aid person within each troop. A doctor will be on call.

Adventure Weekend is planned and caried out by the Troop Camp Committee of the Council. Members who have participated in the planning, some of whom will be administrative staff for the weekend, are: Mrs. Joseph Bauer, chairman;, Mrs. James Banks, Mr. and Mrs. Forest Arndt, Maj. and Mrs. Eugene Lewis, Mrs. John E. Chrisinger, H. A. Simpson, Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Fuston, and Mrs. Donald King, staff adviser.

KITCHEN SELLS

NEW YORK (UPI) — When builders ask the ladies what they think is the biggest advantage for them in moving into a new home, the most frequent answer is: the pleasure of being able to work in a sparkling, modern kitchen.

Margaret Spader, home service consultant for the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association, says proof of this can be found in the ready sale of homes equipped with new built-in, slide-in or free-standing gas ranges that lend themselves to more efficient kitchen layout, are easier to clean, and boost the kinds of automation that are missing in older cooking equipment.

SQUARE BALLOON

AKRON, Ohio (UPI)—Why in the world would anyone want a square balloon? After 20 years of puzzling over this mystery, engineers of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company have received the answer from the widow of famous physicist Enrico Fermi.

The balloon, which Goodyear built back in 1942 without knowing what its use would be, was needed as an airtight enclosure around the pile in which the first controlled chain reaction of atomic energy was accomplished. Mrs. Fermi whose husband supervised the project, revealed the balloon's use in a recent bulletin of the International Atomic Energy Agency.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East

2 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♡

A brief examination of the above diagram will surely convince the reader that South must go down to defeat in his four spade contract. That South actually made the hand is, in our view, not altogether a slur on the defense which was to be sure somewhat reprehensible but, this does not detract from the credit due to South for his ingenuity.

South opened the bidding with one spade and West overcalled two hearts. After North's pass, East was tempted to enter the auction but he was not sure in which direction he could compete profitably and his singleton heart acted as an effective deterrent, so he passed. South rebid his spades and, when North offered a delayed raise, he carried on to game.

West led the king of hearts and, when the dummy was put down, it appeared that everything hinged on the club finesse since declarer was off two heart tricks and one diamond on the face of things. When East followed to the opening lead, South knew that he had a singleton heart, for surely West must have a five card suit to justify an overcall at the two level.

Declarer decided that he might obtain a little extra working room if he could sever the line of communications between his opponents. After winning the first trick with the ace of hearts, he accordingly drew two rounds of trumps ending up in dummy. Now a small diamond was led. East rushed in with the ace and continued the suit, as South ruffed.

A small club was led and the queen was played from the dummy. East was in with the king, but this time he had no safe means of exit. He finally chose to get out with a club and North's ten won the trick. The ace of clubs was cashed on which both have defeated the contract by ducking the diamond lead from South and West discarded hearts. Another club was led from dummy and when East covered he was permitted to hold the trick as South threw another heart. East found himself end-played for a second time. Whether he returned a club or a diamond, declarer could discard his last heart while he ruffed in dummy. The defenders took in all, two club tricks and one diamond.

East could and indeed should dummy, for this would give West a chance to cash out his two heart tricks. Declarer however had earned his triumph by giving his opponent an opportunity to make the wrong play.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

It Is a Problem!

DEAR ABBY: I am very much in love with a lovely, adorable girl who is 16 years younger than I am. (This could be the problem.) This charming lady says she loves me, but her mother would never approve of our marriage because of the age difference. She is devoted to her family and would never marry against their wishes. I waited ten years after my last marriage before considering marrying again, and believe I have found the girl. I am 38 and she is 22. I insist on an open courtship, but she refuses to be seen with me. Is age that important? Do you think she loves me, or is she just being kind to an "old man"? How can I win her? —STILL TRYING

DEAR STILL: You can't. And if you're wise, you'll quit trying.

DEAR ABBY: When people drop in unexpectedly late in the afternoon, are invited to stay for dinner but refuse (saying they have another appointment) and yet continue to visit well past dinner preparation time, is it possible to start preparing dinner? This has happened several times. Yesterday the company left two hours after our usual dinner time. —MRS. C.

DEAR MRS. C.: If you permit uninvited guests to delay your dinner two hours, you are asking for the inconvenience they have caused you. What's wrong with saying, "Excuse me—I have to prepare my dinner"?

DEAR ABBY: In the two years I have been a widow I have learned more than in all the years I was married. I never realized there were so many frightened, unsure married women around. If I need someone to help with the household chores or heavy work, I look in the classified ads. I'd rather pay $10 an hour than ask another woman's husband to do any favors. —SADDER BUT WISER

CONFIDENTIAL TO "Willing Widow": Make sure it's a gleam in his eye — not the sun hitting his bifocals.

Get if off your chest. For a personal reply, write to Abby and send a self-addressed stamped envelope.

Hate to write letters? Send one dollar to "Abby, Box 3365, "Beverly Hills, Calif.," for Abby's new booklet, "How To Write Letters For All Occasions."

Choose the prettiest silk, rayon or cotton print that you can find, then make a second edition in a plain linen, shantung or silk broadcloth. Big Sewing Months

By MARY BROOKS PICKEN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Those who sell yard goods, patten, sewing machines and sewing notions say that there is more sewing done in the first five months of the year than in the last seven.

Reasons for more sewing March thru June there are more parties in winter, more people take vacations in warmer climates, more prepare children's and their own wardrobes for spring and summer — especially the prettier dresses that are worn for dress-up.

If you are planning on doing a lot of sewing, check the fabrics and patterns that you have, cut a tiny sample of each fabric, check the pattern itself to see the kind of zipper needed. Go to a well-stocked notion counter, buy matching zippers and thread.

Be sure you have good sharp pins and needles. I like a no. 7 crewel needle. It is so easy to thread because of the longer eye.

When you shop, be sure to see the new tailor's cushions that make pressing so much easier. They help you get so much better results than when a curved seam or armhold is pressed on a flat surface.

Sleeves are longer and they do need such careful pressing, not only in the seams but in the shoulders. If you do not have a sleeve board or roll, roll up a magazine, tie with a string, wrap a small terry towel over the magazine. Again, tie string around the towel so you have a firm roll. Now press your sleeve seam as shown in sketch.

Use a tailor's cushion by all means, if you have one. If not, place the top of the sleeve over the end of your ironing board as shown and press the seam ever so carefully. Use moisture in the seam or your steam iron. Even with this, sometimes a damp press cloth over the seam will prove a protection.

When shopping, look at braids and bindings, and the unusual trimmings that are available. Sometimes these, like well-styled buttons, can dress a fabric and make it look like it costs more; they can also help to emphasize fashion points.

Dear Mrs. Picken: I seem to have trouble sewing even a slightly biased edge to a straight one. I always get the straight edge too loose and it ripples. What can I do? — L.T.

Dear L. T.: Shown here is an almost sure way for joining a straight and a bias edge together.

Lay both edges out, smooth and flat, and ease the edges together as shown. Do not stretch or pull. Just ease them gently so no wrinkles show. Pin-baste, as in the second illustration. Place the pins crosswise; then, with a short basting sitch, base the two edges together, easing the bias edge on to the straight. Then this is stitched straight. When this is stitched and pressed, the seam should blend together perfectly.

Teens Need Their Snacks

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—My teen-age daughter is always raiding the refrigerator or stopping for snacks on the way home from school. How can I stop this? She is putting on weight.

A—Snack time is a very important part of a teen-ager's life, according to Dr. Charles Glen King, president of the Nutrition Foundation. In a Public Affairs Pamphlet, "Personality 'Plus' Through Diet (Foodlore for Teen-agers)" he states, addressing teen-agers like your daughter. "Snacks are valuable for most teen-agers. You may need the snacks you eat in order to furnish your body with enough calories. But be sure you consider the food as a part of your total daily food pattern. You are wise to expect and count on most of your snacks to make a greater contribution to your daily meal plan than just calories.

"Hot dogs, hamburgers, and other favorite sandwiches, such as cheese and peanut butter, provide important amounts of protein as well as vitamins and minerals.

"Fresh raw fruits and vegetables, such as apples, bananas, apricots, carrots and celery sticks, are good sources of minerals and several of the vitamins. Nearly everyone likes them.

"In addition to the calories in ice cream, you can count on 1-3 of a pint to give you more vitamin A than a glass of milk, and about 1-3 as much calcium. Ice cream also provides small amounts of iron and the B vitamins.

"Malted milk and milk shakes are good sources of calcium, vitamin A, thiamine and riboflavin just as is milk, but they also contain considerably more calories.

Strong Plea Made for Dual Bank System Maintenance

A strong plea for the maintenance of the dual system of federally and state-charted banks was sounded here today by the president of the State Bank Division of the American Bankers Association.

Carl G. Breeze, president, Bank of Kremmling, said the 100-year-old dual system "is just as valid and vital today as at any time in our nation's history."

Breeze, in an address before the 62nd annual convention of the Colorado Bankers Association at the Broadmoor Hotel, said that under the system, "states' rights are respected, potential abuse of check, dynamic, forward-looking regulatory power is held in check, dynamic, forward-looking bank regulation is fostered and many changes can be tested out initially on a statewide basis."

Breeze said, "The justification for our dual banking system rests, first of all, in the freedom of choice it offers banks in operating under a national charter and federal supervision, or under a state charter and state supervision. Second, the duality works to provide 'checks and balances.'

"State banks perform an indispensable function in providing a 'laboratory' for new ideas," he said. He cited trust departments and real estate loans as examples of important bank services which were tested and proved useful at the state level.

At Thursday afternoon's opening session of the conference, the 400 bankers from Colorado heard Adm. William Mott, judge advocate general, U.S. Navy, Washington, D.C.

Mott called for more education in learning to understand the evils of the Communist system. He called education the "key to victory" in winning the cold war which has grown worse every year since it started in September, 1945.

"We must make the people understand that the basic difference is wrapped up in three words — liberty, justice and freedom. And by education, I don't mean an education taught by fluff-heads of the right and screw-balls of the left," the admiral said.

He told the bankers they could help the free enterprise system by promoting a sound knowledge of the U.S. economic system as opposed to communism.

The CBA will end the three-day conference on Saturday.

Student's Play Major Feature Of Colloquium

"Basic Idea", a one-act play written and directed by John Griggs, a fifth form student at Fountain Valley School will be a major feature of the school's third annual Literary Colloquium beginning at 10 a.m., Saturday, in the auditorium.

According to FVS's headmaster, Lewis Perry Jr., more than 200 guests are expected to attend the Colloquium which offers students in the eight member-schools of the Association of Colorado Independent Schools (ACIS) a chance to hear professional judgment of their work by distinguished American artists.

For the first time this year the program will extend into the afternoon with informal seminars scheduled to continue with questions raised in the earlier morning program.

An intermission is planned at noon for lunch and for folksinigng by Colorado College's trio Miss Edith Fulton and Mr. and Mrs. Mike Grace.

Judges this year, who will be concerned with the "Style and form of Student Writing" (the Colloquium theme) are men of local, national and international distinction. Appraising student art-work will be Edgar Britton of Colorado Springs, sculptor, and David Michael, Aspen, Colo., Dr. Campton Bell of Denver University and Dr. Frank Krutzke of Colorado College will judge the poetry and prose.

Dr. Bell, founder of the University of Denver School of the Theater, is now director of the university's school of Communication Arts. He has represented the United States in theater congresses as far afield as Helsinki and Vienna and in 1959 surveyed theater behind the "iron curtain".

In 1962 he received the Theta Alpha Phi award for distinguished contributions to the American theater and only recently returned from a lecture tour in Egypt, India and the Far East.

Edgar Britton, instructor at the Colorado Springs Fine Arts Center and at FVS from 1942 to 1950 is one of the nation's leading sculptors. He has exhibited nationally and completed commissions for the Denver-U.S. National Bank, the Penrose Hospital in Colorado Springs, christ Episcopal Church in Canon City, the Department of Interior Building in Washington, D.C. and many other public and private buildings in the country.

Dr. Krutzke is chairman of Colorado College's english Department where he came in 1939 after serving as research assistant to the Director of the Institute For Advanced Study at Princeton, N.J. David Michael, a graduate of Harvard in 1948, is now working independently as an artist in Aspen.

Love Lauds JA Program For 'Learning by Doing'

Colorado Gov. John A. Love honored a crowd of 325 teenagers and adult advisers in the Junior Achievement program's eighth annual awards banquet Thursday night at the Antlers Hotel.

Before and after his speech, Gov. Love, a former Colorado Springs attorney, was met by groups of the high school students for autographs and personal greetings.

Love, keynote speaker of the evening, lauded the Junior Achievement program for its benefits in "developing business know-how, inspiring the use of imagination, of cementing a loyalty to the free enterprise system, of learning the necessity of certain restrictions in the society in which we live, of learning to use initiative, and good work habits.

"I can see still another important function," Love told the group. "In the process of learning by doing, a great accomplishment is learning to know ourselves better. We do need to learn out limitations — if — any — and our personal resources, and the earlier we learn them and then start to work in correcting our inadequacies or adapting our lives to them, the happier our lot will be," he said.

"May I congratulate you — learners, and leaders, and sponsors — in making yourselves available for this excellent training of Junior Achievement which is certain to be an important factor in building the significant leaders of the future. I admire you, and I wish for you every success," Love concluded.

Gov. and Mrs. Love will be in Colorado Springs today where he will attend a national security forum at the Air Force Academy. The couple will be at an opening night party at the Garden of the Gods Club tonight.

On Saturday, Love will drive with U.S. Rep. Don Brotzman (R-Colo) to Pueblo and into southeast Colorado to inspect drought areas. He will participate in the dedication of an armory in Pueblo Saturday.

Love will fly to Holyoke Monday for the town's Diamond Jubilee celebration.

Appeal Tabled After Lengthy County Board Public Hearing

The El Paso County Board of Adjustment tabled the petition and appeal of F. T. Krupinski Thursday after a lengthy special public hearing.

Krupinski has applied for permission to construct a one-family dwelling on a tract of land on the old Stage Road and Hill Drive. The proposed house would be partly within front and side yard setbacks which do not conform with the zoning resolution and on a lot having less area than that required in an A-2 farming district.

The area was designated as A-2 farming in September, 1962 and plans and designs for the dwelling were completed by Krupinski several months prior to the zoning enforcement.

Krupinski has submitted a petition to the board of adjustment with signatures of adjacent land owners stating they approve of the non-conforming dwelling.

At the hearing Thursday, one land owner, Mrs. Helena Chase Johnson, represented by Attorney Albert Nelson, voiced objection to the location of the proposed dwelling.

Nelson told the board that in his opinion it is illegal to permit this building to be constructed for non-conforming use and suggested that the problem could be resolved if Krupinski would redesign the house plans so that the location of the structure would comply with existing setback regulations.

The Adjustment Board granted the two petitions and appeals filed by Widefield Homes.

The Widefield petitions approved were for a one family dwelling at 100 and 101 Ithaca Street. Both dwellings will be partly within a front yard setback which do not conform with the R-1 residence zoning regulations.

Calhan Woman Died Following Traffic Accident

The death of a 66-year old Calhan area woman Thursday brought the total of fatalities as a result of accidents in El Paso County in April to nine, an all time high.

Mrs. Mary Kanuch, who was injured in a two-car collision April 28, died at 4:45 p.m. Thursday at Penrose Hospital where she had been a patient since the accident.

The state patrol said her death raised the traffic toll in El Paso County to 13 for the year. In 1962, eight persons had been killed in traffic accidents during the same period.

State Patrol Sgt. William E. Stoker said that the nine fatalities recorded in El Paso County in April was a record high for a one-month period here.

Denver Man Fined in Justice Court

A Denver man, Richard Eugene Hobart, 36, was fined $35 and costs by Justice of the Peace H. C. McShane Thursday for reckless driving. He was ticketed May 5 on Colorado Highway 25 by State Patrolman J. Mathis.

Dwight Owen Karow, 20, of the Savoy Hotel was unable to pay a $10 fine and $4 costs for not complying with the inspection law and was sent to county jail. Karow was given the summons Thursday on U.S. Highway 85-87 by State Patrolman Arnold C. Ferrero.

Police Officer Ernest W. Adams cited Mary Louise Donald, 19, of 425 E. St. Vrain St. for having no valid operator's license when driving on East Dale Street Monday. A $6 fine and costs was imposed.

Joseph D. Scanlan was charged with not yielding the right of way May 17 and fined $10 and costs. Scanlan, 62, of 447 W. Uintah St. was cited on North Nevada by State Patrolman J. Mathis.

Pet Owners Can Save on Dog Licenses

Cost conscious dog owners in the city of Colorado Springs have only a few more days to save $1.75 on their pet's dog license for the next twelve months. Dog licenses issued after the June 1 deadline will cost $5.25. Dog owners have no choice in the matter if they live within the city limits.

Licenses are required by city ordinance and the delinquent dog owner might very well be ticketed and fined in addition to paying the higher licenses fee after June 1.

Individuals acquiring a new pet have thirty days in which to obtain the license at the 3.50 fee.

Licenses can be purchased at the City Clerk's office in the City Hall or at the Humane Society, 633 S. 8th St.

Revenue from the license fees go to the city which, in turn, pays the Humane Society for enforcing the leash law.

Abbot also reminded residents that the City County Health Department requires that all dogs be vaccinated against rabies.

Cuban Prisoner Exchange Success Due to Red Cross

The exchange of Cuban prisoners could not have been accomplished without the help of an international organization such as the Red Cross, Ramone S. Eaton, National Red Cross vice president, told the annual meeting of the Pikes Peak Chapter at the Ft. Carson Officers Club Thursday night.

Eaton described the Cuban prisoner exchange in which he played an active part, as one of the most complex in history. "The last eight million dollars worth of supplies is now being loaded for shipment next week," he said.

He added that the Red Cross hoped that Castro would again decide to permit 700 or more Cuban citizens to seek asylum in the United States when this freighter returns.

During the early phases of the exchange a Red Cross official was surprised when Castro first offered to send back Cubans who were not prisoners. "No one knows why he did this."

The Red Cross accepted the responsibility not knowing whether these people could even get into this country. Doctors, nurses and other volunteers were rushed to the freighter transforming it to a passenger vessel to return the Cubans. Since then nearly every freighter loaded with supplies was emptied and transformed into a passenger vessel, according to Eaton.

"Because of the combined efforts of the American and Cuban Red Cross some 6,700 people were brought to freedom who would otherwise be captives today," Eaton added.

Commenting on the high calibre of the Cuban prisoners, Eaton said, "These were remarkable people. They expected to be executed every day. Yet in twenty months not one went over to the Communists and not one ever confessed a thing that would have implicated others or this government in the Bay of Pigs invasion."

Some 135 members and friends of the Red Cross, a United Fund agency, heard Eaton go on to descibe other ways in which the Red Cross internationally maintains communications and manages to accomplish the seemingly impossible.

He cited as examples a child released from East Berlin and a mother who was permitted to visit her imprisoned son in Communist China thru the efforts of the Red Cross.

Speaking on the centennial anniversary of the World Red Cross, Eaton emphasized the importance of uncommitted nations to the United States.

"We must realize that our destiny is tied more to those people who are neither our friends nor our enemies than to those who are our friends or our enemies," he said.

"We must prove to this one third of the world's population that we are deeply and spiritually concerned in our fellowman, that we believe in the dignity of man, in spite of our present problems."

Motor Vehicle Larceny Charge Filed Thursday

Information states the defendant stole a car worth $1,300 from Jon David Fisher, Monday.

Bond was set at $2,000 by Judge William M. Calvert.

Motel Fire Caused by Smoker

Companies 1 and 2 and the aerial at 6:19 a.m. today went to the Imperial 400 Motel, 724 N. Nevada Ave., where a mattress and other articles in a room were being consumed by fire caused, the fire department reported, by William Lemming of Denver falling asleep while smoking a cigaret. Lemming was uninjured. The fire was confined to the one room. George Kurronen is owner of the motel.

On an 8:22 alarm today Company 4 put out a fire caused by an overheated motor on a washing machine at the Ideal Laundermat, 300 S. Hancock Ave. Damage was limited to the washing machine.

The fire department Thursday received two false box alarms, and was unable to find out who had turned them in. One came in at 3:29 p.m. from a box at 611 N. Royer St., and caused runs of Company 1 and 2. The other alarm was received at 9:41 p.m. from a box at Cache la Poudre Street and Wahsatch Avenue and caused runs of Companies 1, 2 and the aerial.

Backfiring from the carburetor of the car of Gene Walt, 1139 Pando St., set fire Thursday to the car while at Nevada Avenue and Pikes Peak Avue. A fire alarm was turned in at 4:25 p.m and Company 1 put out the fire. The car was damaged to some extent.

Company 6 and the resuscitator crew of Company 1 at 8:45 p.m. Thursday went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Brown, 2819 Pennsylvania Ave., where Karen Brown, their two-year-old daughter, was suffering convulsions. An inhalator was used for seven minutes, when the child was brought out of the convulsions. A doctor was called.

Driver Asks Fine Amount After Case Dismissed

"Well, what's the fine?" Thomas Michell, 70, of Fountain asked Municipal Court Judge Allan Asher Wednesday after the judge had dismissed charges against him and George Mattys, 76, 610 E. San Miguel St., both of whom had been charged with signal light violations.

The two men were involved in a car accident at an intersection thru which a funeral procession had passed just before they collided.

"It is fortunate that neither of you became a permanent member of that funeral procession," the judge told them.

Explaining that he could not decide which of them was to blame for the accident, Judge Asher dismissed the charges. It was then that Mitchell asked about the fine and was told by the judge he would not have to pay one.

Marvin Carver, 18, 1204 Pando Ave., who was involved in a beer can throwing incident on May 5th, was found guilty of Disorderly Conduct and Injury to Private Property. He was fined $25 on the first charge and $25 (suspended) on the second. The judge dismissed charges of Riotous Conduct and Breach of the Peace against Carver.

A 17 year old youth who was also involved in the incident had the same charges dismissed at the request of his lawyer, Robert James, and Deputy City Attorney Bob Isaac.

Four men pled guilty to charges of Drunkeness and were fined or sentenced as follows:

Ollie Hill, 52, Clinton Hotel, $25 fine; Arnold Towery, 42, 2605½ W. Colorado Ave., 7 days, and Earl Suttle, Landis, N.C., 10 days (suspended).

Yesterday's Market

Market Shows Improvement; Losses Continue

Volume was estimated at 4.5 million shares compared with 5.4 million Wednesday.

Trading was fairly active.

There was no particular business news on which the market could feed.

Motors and steels came back somewhat with most members of the groups showing fractional gains after having been behind.

Utilities made about the best showing but gains were held to fractions, rails were mixed.

Control Data, which was hit by profit taking Wednesday, advanced more than a point.

Gains of a point or so were registered by International Business Machines, Polaroid, Xerox and Alside.

American Telephone dipped almost a half a point and Du Pont was down more than a point.

The sugars suffered from profit taking despite a new raise in the wholesale sugar prices. South Puerto Rico lost 2 points and American Crystal and Holly were a point or so off.

Pan American World Airways, Caterpillar and Cessna each went up about a point.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange were mixed.

Corporate and government bonds were mixed.

Grain Market

CHICAGO (AP) — Some grain futures contracts developed firmness today on the Board of Trade as speculators indicated a little more preference for long positions.

Soybeans and nearby wheat months moved up as much as a cent or so in the early afternoon and some other commodities firmed slightly. Trading was slow, however.

Brokers said speculators led the support in the soybeans and July wheat. It was based on the supposition that new crop wheat probably would be scarce in commercial channels at current price levels. Talk of probable frost damage to early germinated soybeans also attracted buying.

Estimated carlot receipts today were: Wheat none, corn 187, oats 6, rye none, barley 13, and soybeans 10.

Two Phillips 66 Stations Observe Hospitality Day

Hospitality Day will be observed Saturday by two Colorado Springs Phillips "66" stations—the Valley-Hi "66" Service, 2430 E. Pikes Peak ave., and the Sauerhagen & Son 66 Service Station, 311 S. Nevada Ave.

Both stations will give six-bottle packs of 7-Up with every order to "filler 'er up." A Philcheck lubrication is given when the empty bottles are returned with a hospitality tag.

Manager of the Sauerhagen station is Harless Sauerhagen who lives at 2415 Airport Rd. He has been manager of the station for 15 years. Sauerhagen came to the Pikes Peak Region in 1943.

He is married and has three children: Roger, 10; Marilyn, 8; and Rodney, 6.

Dwain Parrish is the new manager at Valley-Hi "66" as of two weeks ago Thursday. He was formerly manager of Nevada "66" at 801 N. Nevada Ave.

He and his wife live at 161 Grinnel, Security. Their children are Lynette, 11, and Lonnie, 9.

Last week Hospitality Day was observed at Phillips stations at 701 N. Union Blvd., and 16 W. Colorado Ave.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Kenneth Ward of Hayden, Stone & Co. believes the current phase of readjustment may prove to be the last chance to switch attention and buy many attractive medium and low priced stocks at favorable levels before the next upward thrust.

Ward bases his belief on the fact that many good values have been held down to exceedingly low levels and that a large segment of the public remains skeptical as evidenced by the size of the short position and the favorable daily ratio of odd-lot purchases to sales.

Except for technical pitfalls, Thomson & McKinnon feels that sound common stocks can be expected to follow the line of least resistance which continues to point upward in the market.

United Business Service points out that food store shares, which were generally unpopular last year, have been above average market performers this year. The firm says investors are seeing the group this year as a "recession-resistant growth industry." The firm attributes last year's unpopularity to "too many stores, too intense competition and too much of a rise in operating expenses."

Self-Opening Beer Can Sold In Peak Region

A new wrinkle in packaging—a beer can that needs no opener—has been introduced in the Colorado Springs area by the Joseph Schlitz Brewing Company.

The can, developed by Alcoa, has a unique self-opening feature which makes the conventional beer can opener a relic. The aluminum top of the new can has a metal tab which is easily lifted by thumb or finger and pulled off, creating a keyhole-shaped opening ideal for pouring or for drinking from the can.

The Schlitz company has begun marketing the revolutionary new can in the Pikes Peak Region under the name "Pop Top" for its Schlitz brand and "Tap Top" for its Old Milwaukee beer. The Pikes Peak Region is among the first markets in the country to receive the self-opening can, which Schlitz is the first national brewer to adopt.

"Pop Top" and "Tap Top" will be distributed locally by Walk Distributors, 220 S. Sierra Madre St., Schlitz and Old Milwaukee wholesale firm operated by Wayne Walk.

Real Estate Insurance Loans

Colorado Springs real estate loans totaling $557,248 were disbursed during the first four months of 1963 by the western home office of the Prudential Insurance Co.

According to Sean McDonald, Jr., Rocky Mountain regional manager for the company's mortgage loan department, this was all for residential purposes.

Loans in Colorado totaled $6,179,839. Of this amount, $4,807,489 was for residential loans, $507,500 was for commercial and industrial loans, and $864,850 was for farm projects.

Prudential invested $75,892,987 in real estate projects throughout the 13 western states. Residential loans totaled $54,064,742; commercial and industrial loans totaled $12,036,311, and farm projects accounted for $9,771,934.

Chile Chosen As Ski Site

ATHENS (AP)—The 24th International Ski Federation Congress today chose Portillo, Chile, as the site for the 1966 world alpine championships.

The congress also chose Oslo, Norway, for the 1966 World Nordic Championships.

The Chile decision was expected to cause international repercussions.

Some delegates had raised objections to holding the event in the Southern Hemisphere. Austria contended that competitors from the Northern Hemisphere would have trouble retraining themselves because the seasons are opposite below the Equator.

Davos, Switzerland, and Naeba, Kan, had been bidding for the event.

Chile has tentatively set the 1966 championships for August, contending that skiers arriving in June would have enough time to get adjusted.

Market in Doldrums; Prices Reported Mixed

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market wallowed in the doldrums early Friday afternoon.

Prices were mixed and changes of key issues were narrow. Trading was moderately active.

Brokers said that although the business news background was considered favorable, the market apparently was taking a breather from the spring advance before the Dow Jones industrial average makes another attempt to surmount its historic highs.

The sugars again were targets of profit taking with losses running to 2 points.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off .6 to 274.0 with industrials off .8, rails off .2 and utilities off .4.

The blue chips were unable to attract their former following and the specialty issues managed only a few good gains.

Pan American World Airways, American Airlines and Eastern Air Lines advanced about half a point. United Aircraft, Boeing and Douglas were ahead by smaller fractions.

Among the sugars, American Crystal and Great Western lost 2 points. Holly was off a point.

Youngstown Sheet gained almost 2 points and Jones & Laughlin picked up about half a point. U.S. Steel was unchanged.

Texas Gulf Producing was active and ahead better than 2 points. Also active and up about a point were Dan River Mills and Soo Line Railroad.

International Business Machines advanced more than 2 points while U.S. Smelting, Control Data and Addressograph added more than a point.

Polaroid declined nearly 2 points.

Although reports of automobile sales were favorable, the motors were quiet. General Motors and American Motors were ahead by fractions while Chrysler was off half a point.

American Telephone, Anaconda American Cyanamid, International Paper and Johns Manville were ahead fractionally.

American Stock Exchange prices were mixed in quiet trading. Driver-Harris advanced more than 2 points. Fractional gainers included Cinerama, Industrial Plywood, Kidde, Occidental Petroleum and Rayette. Off a point or so were Michigan Sugar, New Process, San Carlos Milling and Utah-Idaho Sugar.

Corporate bonds were higher and governments were lower.

Savings Increase Credit Business

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YOR K(AP) — Mounting savings of American citizens are keeping credit easy. And the results are beginning to spill over into many fields:

Easier terms for some borrowers, such as auto and home buyers and corporate treasurers; isolated declines in the dividends paid by savings and loan associations; a competitive rush to buy available mortgages; and reduced pressure on the U.S. Treasury as it strives to live under its debt ceiling.

The easier credit terms also have aided the pickup in sales of big ticket items to consumers and hence play a part in the better than expected growth in the economy this spring. And the surplus of available funds for mortgages helps home builders raise their sights.

Savings began pouring into lending institutions about 18 months ago when they raised their interest payments. The trend was speeded up when the stock market crash a year ago frightened many small investors.

To pay higher interest on much larger savings accounts the banks began competing with the savings and loan groups for mortgages, which yield more than do government or corporate bonds.

This competition has kept the mortgage market easy. Rates still vary between 5 and 6 per cent, but of late have tended toward the lower end of the range.

And the buying up of mortgages from federal agencies—chiefly the Federal National Mortgage Association—has given them more cash and hence less need to borrow from the hard-pressed U.S. Treasury. This has helped it ward off bumping the debt ceiling while Congress decides whether to lift it, and if so how high.

In recent days a few savings and loan associations—in Arizona, Alabama, and elsewhere—have lowered the relatively high dividends they pay savers. Some think the movement will spread, as these instituions adjust to lower returns from the mortgages they finance. Others believe the demand for mortgages is due to pick up, and interest rates on them to harden, so that the dividends to savers can be maintained.

Also, in recent weeks the rate of personal saving has dropped a bit, as consumers have stepped up buying of big ticket items. So the accumulation of lendable funds may slacken.

But in addition to new savings, the money market is replenished by a huge volume of repayments on outstanding mortgages, and on a record total of instalment debt.

Schoeppner Hangs Up Gloves After First Loss

ROME (UPI)—Erich Schoeppner of West Germany announced his retirement from the ring today because of his first professional defeat in an eight-year career and his failure to recapture the European light heavyweight title from Italy's Giulio Rinaldi.

Each boxer weighed 173½ pounds.

Before the fight both Schoeppner, 30, and Rinaldi, 28, had promised to retire in case of defeat. And today Erich announced: "I'll certainly keep my promise. I'm no good any more for the fight game."

Schoeppner was thoroughly whipped by the persistently attacking champion, who inflicted upon Erich his first defeat in 40 professional bouts, which included four draws. There were no knockdowns.

Schoeppner had worn the European crown from December 1958 to March 27, 1962, when the European Boxing Union vacated his title because of his failure to defend. Rinaldi captured the vacant championship on Sept. 28, 1962, on a decision over Chic Calderwood of Scotland.

Threats From Nikita Branded as Bluster

Washington was far more interested in what policies of actual Soviet military and economic assistance Castro may have obtained on his tour of Russia.

Beyond that, however, officials were most deeply interested in the evidence which the Castro farewell ceremony produced that Khrushchev is preoccupied with his quarrel with Red China and is engaged in a determined campaign to reconcile differences and end the split.

Demo Coffers Are Filled by Birthday Salute

By FRANK FORMIER

NEW YORK (AP)—A birthday salute wafted kind words and soft music in President Kennedy's direction—and cold cash into Democratic coffers Thursday night.

Each of the diners had contributed at least $1,000 to the Democratic party this year — yet the White House insisted it was a bipartisan gathering. This little joke seemed to be part of the birthday fun.

After the dinner and a rousing entertainment, Kennedy drove to the uptown apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Earl E. T. Smith, old friends who entertained him until nearly 2 a.m.

Then Kennedy returned to his own quarters at the Carlyle Hotel to rest before flying back to Washington. He will be guest tonight at the annual White House press dinner.

Just across the Waldorf-Astoria lobby from the Kennedy party, the American Iron and Steel Institute simultaneously presented an award to former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Kennedy didn't encounter Eisenhower during his stay at the hotel. But he couldn't resist the temptation to joke about their proximity.

"Just down the hall," he said, "the steel industry honored my distinguished predecessor, President Eisenhower, with an award as the person who has done most for the steel industry this year. Last year, I won the award."

This reference to Kennedy's 1962 battle to stave off a steel price increase brought as much laughter from the President's audience as the earlier efforts of such professional comics as Bob Newhart and Jimmy Durante.

Before going to his party, Kennedy paid a 10-minute courtesy call on former President Herbert Hoover, who lives in the hotel, the presidential visit interrupted Hoover's dinner.

Kennedy did not run into three other luminaries at the hotel — Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who is a permanent resident, and the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, who checked in Thursday.

Johnson, 54, said he had been "asked to speak on behalf of my fellow youths in this administration and extend best wishes to the oldest active living Democratic President"—meaning Kennedy.

In what was perhaps his only serious moment at the celebration, Kennedy quoted Emerson as saying there is a party of hope and a party of memory.

"We are the party of hope," he said.

Trial Still Slated In Defamation Suit

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A U.S. District Court judge has refused to dismiss major complaints in a $1.1 million defamation suit filed against Norman M. Littel of Washington, D. C., general counsel for the Navajo Tribe.

The suit was filed two years ago by Laurence Davis, who contends he lost his job as tribal assistant general counsel because of alleged statements by Littel.

Federal Judge Fred M. Taylor of Boise, Idaho, dismissed two of the 16 counts at a recent hearing in U.S. District Court in Phoenix.

In permitting the rest to stand, Taylor said he was guided by Arizona Supreme Court decisions which indicate an increasingly broadened view as to use of innuendo to establish defamation.

A trial date has not been set.

Santa's Workshop at the North Pole, on Pikes Peak Highway in Cascade, has mailed courtesy admission cards to all boxholders in Cascade, Chipita Park, Green Moutain Falls and Woodland Park. A visit to see Santa and his reindeers before June 15, will entitle the holder to exchange the card for a season pass.

Dr. James Wambach, former resident of Cascade, returned May 11 from his two week mission called "Holiday for Humanity" into the wilds of Jacaltenango, ~~Huehue~~tenanego, Guatemala. While there he extracted more than 500 teeth and felt he had "scratched only the surface," as he was the first dentist who had volunteered services to the Maryknoll Mission in the hills. Dr. Wambach found the people very friendly and grateful and in the mountainus area it seemed like home in Ute Pass. While passing thru a little village the thrill of a lifetime occurred when he met a religious brother who was a former chum in High School in Milwaukee, Wis. Friends of the Wambachs are looking forward to viewing the many colored slides taken while there.

George Knox Jr. arrived home May 8, having finished his tour of reserve training at Marine Corp "boot camp" at San Diego, Calif. Each boy had a turn in slicing potatoes for French Fries just like the chef, and mixed his own soft drink from the fountain. Hamburgers were purchased for everyone accompanied by the free drink and a bag of French Fries by the management. Before leaving, the group circled the manager, giving him three DYB howls. The tour was planned in lieu of the last den meeting for the season. Full attendance of Cub Scouts were at the family picnic Saturday afternoon, held in the city park, Green Mountain Falls. Stuart, Stockhouse Will Enter Pentathlon Wasson's Chuck Stuart and Rob Stockhouse of Air Force Academy High will represent the local area in the first annual State Pentathlon at Aurora Saturday according to information from their respective coaches.

This is the first time that the State High School Activities Association has sponsored a pentathlon event and only 13 prep athletes from around the state have qualified to enter. The pentathlon includes five separate events, the 100 yard dash, high jump, high hurdles, discus, and mile run. Participants are awarded points according to a performance scale with the highest total over the five events determining the winner.

Coach Jim Hartman at Wasson said Stuart had qualified with a total of 3895 points but since has turned in performances that would put him over the 4000 mark. A total of 3750 is required to qualify. Stockhouse came up with 3748, just two points shy, and was accepted by meet officials anyhow, according to Coach Leon Glick.

A perfect performance would net an athlete 5,000 points, or 1,000 in each event. The scale set up to obtain maximum points in each event is as follows, 9.8 in the 100 yard dash, 15.0 in the high hurdles, 135 feet in the discus, 5-10 in the high jump, and 4:50 in the mile.

Stuart, who has been a brilliant two sport athlete for the Thunderbirds, will likely be among the favorites at Aurora Saturday. His best marks by event are 10.4 in the 100 (850 points), 5-4 in the high jump (760 points), 145-2½ in the discus (1,000 points), 16.3 in the high hurdles (805 points), and 5:28.3 in the mile (620 points). That figures up to a total of 4035.

To further point out the amazing versatility of the Wasson star, he has also turned in the following makrs this year: 19-9 in the broad jump, 21.9 on a 220 relay leg, 52.1 on a 440 relay leg, 13-2 in the pole vault, 21.3 in the low hurdles, and 47-6½ in the shot put.

Stockhouse's qualifying marks were as follows: 9.9 i nthe 100 (75 points), 104 feet in the discus (628 points), 17.5 in the high hurdles (625 points), 5-8 in the high jump (20 points), and 5:30 in the mile (600 points). He won both the 100 and 220 dashes in the recent Pikes Peak League District Meet and was second in both at the AA State Meet.

In addition to the two local lads, the field at Aurora will include Bob Alonso and Don Biggs from Aurora Central, Irvin Curley of Las Animas, Royal Daniels and William Lewis of Denver Manual, Joe Hamilton of Denver George Wasington, Larry Hilbelink and Jim Link of South Denver, Jerry McWilliams of Sargeant, Stan Robbins of Jefferson County High, and Terry Ten Eyck of Wheat Ridge.

Nick Koerner of Lakewood, the first high school lad in the state pole vault 14 feet, is also qualified but meet officials said it was doubtful if he would participate due to an injury.

The first event is due to get underway at 10 a.m. Saturday and the meet is due to wind up shortly after 2:30 p.m.

Nicklaus Hits Hole-in-One To Tie for Memphis Lead

By DON MCLEOD

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—With rising temperatures promising to aid scores, a breakup was expected today in the log jam at the head of the $50,000 Memphis Open golf tournament.

Eight pros took the first round lead Thursday with three under par 67s over the 6,501-yard, par 34-36—70 Colonial Country Club course.

Jack Nicklaus, the tour's leading money winner, put on the best show among early leaders with a hole-in-one on the short, par three third hole.

Bunched in the lead with Nicklaus were Jerry Edwards of Ft. Worth, Buster Cupit of Ft. Smith, Ark., Fred Hawkins of El Paso, Dick Mayer of Palm Desert, Calif., Cary Middlecoff of Memphis, Johnny Pott of Gulf Hills, Miss., and Tony Lema of San Leandro, Calif.

The ace, Nicklaus' first as a pro and the fifth in his career, came on a sharp six iron wrap down the 185-yard third hole. The ball hit a bank at the right of the green, took a hard kick left and lammed the pin.

A chill breeze that swept the course most of the day sent scores soaring until an afternoon sun warmed the competition. Only 21 golfers broke par, compared to the 37 who beat it in the opening round last year.

Annual Ice Hockey Clinic Scheduled for Broadmoor

The annual ice hockey clinic for young players of the Pikes Peak Region will be held again this summer at the Broadmoor World Arena, under the direction of Vic Heyliger.

The two-week clinic is schedule to start June 10 and last until June 24, with one session slated for 10 a.m. to noon and another for older boys from 10 p.m. to midnight.

"We will be teaching mainly fundamentals," Heyliger said "But there will also be advanced techniques for those qualified. Most of the clinic will be taken up with skating, passing, shooting and play-making drills," he continued.

Last year the clinic had an attendance of 60 boys interested in improving their hockey, and Heyliger said that the same number will be excepted this June. Application forms have been mailed to many prospects thruout Colorado Springs, and anyone needing a registration form may obtain one at the ticket office at the Broadmoor World Arena.

Heyliger is a former hockey coach at Michigan University, where he led the Wolverines to the NCAA championships 10 straight years. This past winter he was coach of the West German ahead of the U.S. in the World Tournament at Stockholm, Sweden.

Cleveland Defense Receives Big Boost

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Cleveland Browns' defensive line received a big boost with the report that tackle Ken Frost has recovered from surgery on a knee last October.

Dr. Vic Ippolito checked the knee Thursday and said he saw no reason why the 6-foot-4, 255-pound former Tennessee ace shouldn't be able to go full speed this season.

Conley Thinking About Ending Dual Career

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP)—Ailing Red Sox pitcher Gene Conley is wondering if the time has come to end his duel career as a major league athlete in both baseball and basketball.

Sidelined by a virus expected to keep him out of action until the Sox return from Detroit after the weekend, Conley admits he feels the pressure of his year-around competition.

He also performs for the New York Knicks of the National Basketball Association and suffered an ankle injury which slowed his baseball start this season.

Senators Lose First Tilt Under New Pilot

By JIM BECKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

On the strength of his first night on the job, Gil Hodges appears to be in no danger of having to leave the country.

Hodges, moving from cellar to cellar, took over as manager of the last place Senators Thursday night, shifting from the New York Mets who occupy a similar position in the National League.

Before the game, the appointment came up for discussion on Capitol Hill, where one congressman said if Hodges can do anything with the slumping Seantors he will be just the man to take over the U.S. foreign aid program.

Gil seems to be safe at home for a while. The Senators responded to new leadership by rolling over quietly before Robin Roberts and the Baltimore Orioles, 6-0, for their 11th loss in their last 12 games.

Roberts held the Senators to two hits, both by shortstop Ed Brinkman, and didn't walk a man as he pitched his third straight complete victory. The 36-year-old right-hander lost his first four this season.

The victory, Baltimore's ninth in 10 games, moved the Orioles a half game in front in the American League over the idle Chicago White Sox.

The other two games on the slim baseball card also produced shutouts, both in the National League.

The St. Louis Cardinals moved back into third place with a 1-0 victory over the Chicago Cubs, and the Cincinnati Reds defeated the Milwaukee Braves 2-0.

Ernie Broglio, the Cardinal ace, ran his record to 5-1 with a five-hitter. Lefty Dick Ellsworth, who allowed only four hits in seven innings, was the Cub victim. Catcher Gene Oliver's homer in the fifth accounted for the only run.

Jim O'Toole won his seventh against three losses on a three-hitter against the Braves. Denny Lemaster, the loser, threw a four hitter. The Reds scored in the fourth on an error and a pop double by Daryl Spencer. They added a run in the ninth on another error, a stolen base and a single by Ken Walters.

The Senators wasted little time showing their new manager how life is lived in the other cellar. Starter Claude Osteen gave up all six Baltimore runs in the first three innings. Solo homers by Al Smith and Jerry Adair in a two run double by Jack Brandt were the big blows.

AFL-CIO chief George Meany asked if Hodges would make a good manager of the Senators.

Rep. Edna Kelly of Brooklyn, noting Gil's long service with the Dodgers when they occupied that area, said: "Anybody from Brooklyn is bound to do a good job."

Rep. Wayne Hays of Ohio said: "All I can say is, if he does, we ought to get him to run the foreign aid program."

Actually, about the only managerial move Hodges was allowed to make turned out well. He yanked Osteen in the third for Jim Duckworth, who blanked the Orioles the final 5 2-3 innings.

Osteen was the 14th consecutive left-hander who failed to last against southpaws. But Osteen against southpaws. But Oseten was selected to pitch before Hodges took over.

Sports Storm Brewing

Just over the horizon, the in the direction of our setting sun, there could be a storm brewing. And we don't mean another shower for the beleaguered farmers who are about to blow away from the recent Colorado drought.

These clouds are forming in international sports competition and the cloudburst is liable to come during the planned Olympic Games in 1964.

International competition in basketball, hockey and baseball recently showed the difficulty this country is having in forming top caliber teams. Basketball and baseball, both mothered by this country, had Uncle Sammy rubbing liniment on a few lumps suffered in the so-called World Championships and in the Pan-American Games, each in South America. The U. S. hockey team finished about as low as possible in the World games in Sweden last March.

Some pooh-pooh these results with the excuse that when national prestige is really at stake in the Olympics, we will have our best foot forward. But meanwhile behind the Iron Curtain the powers-that-be are using every U. S. defeat to full advantage in feeding their propaganda machine, you can bet on that.

And don't think for a minute that this doesn't make wonderful fodder for feeding potential Party members the idea that a certain red-lined philosophy produces the strong armed people of the world.

There wasn't much hullabaloo over Castro's bearded boys whipping the Yanks in the Pan-Am baseball round robin. There were insinuations that a Cuban caper of some kind allowed a few pros in the midst of the other simon-pures, but few state-side spokesmen advocated sending Mickey Mantle, Willie Mays, et al, to mop up the situation. Besides, baseball isn't recognized in the Olympics, so there's no worry there.

In the case of basketball and hockey, our legion's leaders figure to revamp the squads to make a better showing in the Olympics next year. The humiliating loss by the Yanks in basketball only added fuel to the fire that's been raging between the AAU and the NCAA's National Federation for control of international athletics, with the Feds claiming the AAU was all to blame and that they could fly to the top perch if given the chance.

The National Federation seems to have won this point. But one important factor has been overlooked. The Olympics in Japan will take place during October for the Summer Games and this will coincide with the regular school year for all our colleges. We wonder just how many of the collegians the Federation hopes will carry out colors will free themselves for competition.

There have been reports that the Communist countries will pull out completely next year and form their own Olympic Games. To say the least, this would leave everyone holding a bag full of empty competition.

International sports in the past have been marred by restriction of some teams and boycott by others because of political friction. But never before has there been a complete split of East and West — especially in the Olympics.

Still compounding the probable problems of the Olympics, there could be further headaches over the housing shortage in Tokyo, which will have athletes and visitors from thruout the world shouting, down with the Games.

Tickets for the competition will not be issued until proof is shown that housing reservations have been made. And the hotel situation in Tokyo, the largest city in the world, is acute in normal times. Many Japanese inns are not acceptable to visitors, especially those with beds on the floor, no chairs, etc.

Applications for room reservations have been accepted since last December. They require a deposit of half the rental when confirmed and the balance must be paid over two months in advance of the Olympics opening.

If a reservation is cancelled by next May 31, 25 per cent of the room rate will be deducted from the refund. On cancellations between June 1 and July 31 of next year, 50 per cent of the room rate is deducted. And no refunds will be made on cancellations after July 31.

In addition, there is a clause in the regulations that "service charges" and taxes will be collected after arrival. Which opens the door for more bilking of the public than scandalized the 1960 Olympics in Rome.

It all points to a giant SNAFU at the Games. The Land of the Rising Sun may turn out to be the sinking spot for international competition.

Zora Folley Wins Decision Over Cleroux

MONTREAL (UPI) — Zora Folley, perennial contender to the heavyweight throne, today looked ahead to an outdoor meeting against former and sometimes retired champion Ingemar Johansson of Sweden following his unanimous decision over Canadian Bob Cleroux.

Folley, weighing six pounds less than his Canadian opponent at 200 pounds, demonstrated a near matchless ring artistry and increased aggressiveness Thursday night en route to his lopsided 10-round victory over his younger opponent from Montreal. The 31-year-old Chandler, Ariz., battler barely worked up a sweat as he slashed the awkward and inept, but ever willing, Cleroux at will.

The victory, Folley's 64th in 73 professional bouts, was his second lopsided decision over the 25-year-old Canadian swinger. He defeated Cleroux almost as handily April 18, 1962, in San Francisco.

Cleroux, who eagerly announced "I'd like to fight him again right away," couldn't have been a better choice in making a master boxer like Folley look good. His counter punches repeatedly stung Cleroux (39-4-1) but he couldn't put the bullish Canadian down.

U.S. Team Takes Lead In Walker Cup Matches

By HENRY W. THORNBERRY
UPI Sports Writer

TURNBERRY, Scotland (UPI)—The United States got off to a 2 to 1 lead over Britain in the Walker Cup Golf championship today when the Charlie Coe-Deane Beman and Labron Harris Downing Gray teams won their opening foursomes matches.

Coe and Beman easily defeated Michael Lunt of England and David Sheahan of Ireland, 5 and 3; and Harris and Gray beat Joe Carr of Ireland and Charles Green of Scotland, 2 up, in high winds and intermittent rain.

Britain scored its only point in the morning 18-hole foursomes competition when Mike Bonallack of England and Stuart Murray of Scotland beat Billy Joe Patton of Morganton, N. C., and Dick Sikes of Springdale, Ark., 4 and 3.

Tie Not Counted

The other fouresomes match—in which Bob Gardner of Essex Falls N. J., and Dr. Edgar Updegraff of Tucson, Ariz., played David Madely of Ireland and Ronnie Shade of Scotland—ended in a tie. Under Walker Cup rules, a halved match is not played to an extra-hole decision.

Eight 18-hole singles matches were scheduled for the afternoon.

The matches started in dull, overcast weather, with a slight breeze blowing over the 7,025-yard, par 72 Ailsa course on the Scottish seaside.

Patton and Sikes grabbed an early lead in their opening foursomes match when they won the second hole. However, Bonallack and Murray swept four straight holes starting with the sixth, and grabbed a 3 up lead at the turn.

Other afternoon matches today pit Beman against Murray, Patton against England's Martin Christmas, Sikes against Carr, Harris against Sheahan, Coe against Scotland's Sandy Saddler, and Gray against Shade.

One point will be awarded for each 18-hole match, making a total of 24 points at stake. No points are awarded for deadlocked (halved) matches.

In the last previous cup test held at Seattle, Wash., in 1961, the United States won 11-1. Under the new format, the Yanks could run up even a higher score this time.

Defensive Line Trio Signs Tryout Contracts

Yank Cage Team Ready To Play Spoiler Role

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) —The United States, one of the pre-tournament favorites was ready to play the role of spoiler today in an attempt to salvage its reputation in the world amateur basketball championships.

The Yanks have no chance to win the title, but can prevent Brazil from clinching the crown when the two teams meet Saturday on the final day of the tournament.

Brazil broke a first place tie with Russia and remained the only unbeaten squad by turning back the Soviet Union 90-79 in a near-riotous game Thursday night. Earlier, the United States finally lived up to its advance billing by romping over Italy 101-73 for its third triumph in five games.

Only the United States is now in a position to stop the Brazilians from completing a perfect six-game sweep, and if they are successful they can leave the door open for either Russia or Yugoslavia to create a deadlock.

Yugoslvaia is a solid favorite to defeat France tonight and boost its record to 4-1, the same as Russia's. The two Soviet bloc nations then meet on Saturday with the winner having a chance at the championship should the United States upset Brazil.

Brazilian coach Togo Soares engaged in several vehement arguments with referee Julio Sanchez Padilla of Uruguay Wednesday night and was ejected from the game at the start of the second half for his aggressive attitude. The capacity crowd of 25,000 greeted this with a barrage of smoke bombs, colored streamers and coins.

Brazil could muster only a 43-42 halftime lead but after another close duel for most of the second half the Brazilians went on a scoring burst in the final minutes to clinch the decision. Russian center Alexander Petrov led all scorers with 25 points and Victor Mirchauswka topped Brazil with 24.

The Yanks built up a 59-28 advantage at intermission against Italy and coasted home in the final half although going mainly with their second team. Don Kojis paced the United States with 20 points.

Senators Call Back John Kennedy

BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI)—John Kennedy is returning to Washington.

The Washington Senators announced Thursday they were bringing up third baseman Kennedy from their York (Pa.) farm club in the Eastern League to reach the 25-player limit.

Drivers Spur Cars to Make '500' Field

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — With one more full day of practice left before the final weekend of time trials for the Memorial Day 500-mile auto race, veteran drivers who have not yet qualified are moving into the speed brackets believed necessary to make the 33-car field.

Although some of the top performances in Thursday's heavy traffic at the Speedway were by drivers who already have put their cars in the starting lineup, several of the drivers still seeking berths had laps in the 149-150 m.p.h. bracket.

The first good weather in almost one week had some 40 cars put on the track during the almost windless day.

Parnelli Jones, who set a new track record last week when he won the pole position for the second year in a row, turned in the day's best performance with eight laps at an unofficial 151 m.p.h. or better. His top speed on the electric eye timer was 151.976 m.p.h.

Bobby Grim of Indianapolis, looking for a starting berth, was second to Jones in the speed department Thudsday with an unofficial clocking of 151.7 m.p.h.

Others waiting to qualify who were in the upper brackets Thursday included Dick Rathmann, Roselle, Ill.; Bobby Unser, Albuquerque, N.M.; Bud Tingelstad, Dayton, Ohio; Lloyd Ruby, Wichita Falls, Tex.; Eddie Johnson, Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, and Jimmy Daywalt, Indianapolis.

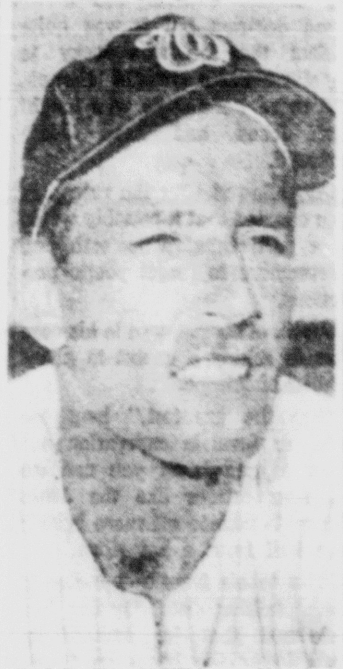
Nats Trade Piersall; Get John F. Kennedy

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

It wasn't an even exchange but the New York Mets got Jimmy Piersall and the Washington Senators wound up with John F. Kennedy.

Completing a quick doubleplay—without a fumble—the Senators fired the controversial Piersall over to the Mets Thursday in what appeared to be the conclusion of the deal in which Gil Hodges took over as Washington manager.



SOLD TO METS — Washington Senators outfielder Jim Piersall was sold to the New York Mets for cash and a player to be named later. (AP Wirephoto)

Hodges, of course, lost a ballplayer before he even got started with his new club, but the Senators gave him three in return by latching onto pitcher Pete Burnside, outfielder Bardy Shetrone and an infielder name of John F. Kennedy.

In another trade, Pittsburgh acquired Jerry Lynch, pinch hitter deluxe with the home run touch, from Cincinnati in a straight player deal that sent outfielder Bob Skinner to the Reds.

The Kansas City Athletics shipped outfielders Manny Jimenez, who hit .301 as a rookie last year and Jose Tartabull to Portland while elevating Hector Martinez and John Wojcik from their Pacific Coast League farm club.

Piersall figures to be a fixture in the Mets' center field and fits Manager Casey Stengel's description of "my type of player."

Piersall expressed little surprise at the deal. "I've been in baseball 16 years. You never know what's going to happen," he said. "I'm happy to go play for Stengel. He was my biggest booster when I was a rookie. He made the compliments on my fielding that caused people to begin to notice me."

Piersall did other things to make people notice him. He had frequent run-ins with umpires, exchanged words of an uncomplimentary nature with managers, and throughout his career has been a favorite target for hostile fans.

Piersall's credentials, despite his antics, speak well of Piersall the ballplayer. He carried a .274 lifetime average over a 12-year span into this season and is rated one of the finest fielding outfielders in the game.

To get Piersall, the Mets also sent along a bundle of cash and will ship a player to be named later to the Senators.

After completing the Piersall deal the Senators optioned pitcher Art Quirk, called up Shetrone from their Columbus team in the International League, signed free agent Burnside and elevated Kennedy, a youngster with the famous name who last year broke in by hitting a homer in his first at-bat in the majors.

The Lynch-Skinner transaction likely will have considerable bearing on the pennant races. The Pirates pick up a slugger in Lynch and the Reds round out a top outfield with Skinner joining Vada Pinson and Frank Robinson.

Skinner said he had an idea he might be traded, despite the fact he hit .302 last year with 20 homers and 75 runs batted in.

Red's President Bill Dewitt said he gave up Lynch because "Skinner is a year younger, a better runner and a better outfielder."

Lynch has compiled an astonishing record as a pinch hitter. He has a career total of 13 pinch homers, one shy of the major league record held by George Crowe.

That home run punch seemed to impress the Pirates. Said General Manager Joe L. Brown: "He carries a big bat and can do the job as a regular or on the bench. He's the kind of player that can spark a club."

Jimmy Hall, 25, played with nine minor league teams since 1956 before he was brought up by the Minnesota Twins this spring.

Qualifying For Open Scheduled

DENVER (UPI)—Only 11 of 64 golfers will survive the first local qualifying round for the U.S. Open Golf Tournament Monday at the 36-hole go-around at the Cherry Hills Country Club.

Cherry Hills golf officials said Thursday the total entries included 41 professionals and 23 amateurs. The top eleven finishers will be entered in the sectional qualifying round June 10 in Denver.

The June 10 matches will include qualifiers from Salt Lake City, Phoenix and Albuquerque. Low scorers in that meet will enter the national meet.

Top pro contenders Monday include Frank (Buzz) Garvin of Colodado Springs and Bill Bisdorf of Denver, the two from this area who qualified for the national meet last year, and Tony Novitsky of Littleton, Art Severson of Colorado Springs, and Pat Rea of Pueblo, all past qualifiers.

Jim Colbert to Play For Adams State Alums

ALAMOSA—Jim Colbert, former star athlete at Colorado Springs High School and now an assistant coach at Palmer High in the Springs, will among the standouts of recent years when the Adams State College alumni and next year's varsity clash Saturday in the climax of spring grid practice.

Colbert was an all-conference end in the Rocky Mountain Conference in 1960 at Adams State.

Also on the alumni team will be eight members of last year's RMC championship team, including quarterback Bob Hidalgo and Jim Edwards. Hidalgo set school passing and total offense records and was named to the Little All-America team. Edwards was the leading rusher for the team at fullback and was picked for the defensive Little All-America squad.

The varsity is expected to be paced by quarterback Jim Paronto, of Spur, Tex., who has been impressive in spring drills. Other probable backs in the starting lineup for the Indian varsity will be Joe Lee, Larry Anderson and Clarence Jones at running back, and Larry Hemmingway and Art Christopher at split backs.

Another Colorado Springs' product, Carl Fetters from Cheyenne Mt. High, is expected to start next fall for the Indians, but this spring missed the grid practice ecause of baseball.

The game is set for 1:30 p.m. Saturday on Rex Field here on the A-State campus.

Kansas City's AFL Entry To Open Against Broncos

DALLAS (UPI) — The American Football League's newest member, Kansas City's team without a nickname, will help the young league open its fourth season when it travels to Denver to play the Broncos on Friday night, Sept. 6.

League Commissioner Joe Foss, who moves his league headquarters from here to New York a week from today, announced the complete 56-game schedule, which includes 16 night games—the same number as last year.

The Sept. 6 date was different from the one announced by the Texans, which said the clubs would open Sept. 7 in Denver, but Milt Woodard, assistant commissioner, said the league office had not been notified of any propose change and would uphold the Sept. 6 date.

The Kansas City team, which won the AFL title last season when it was known as the Dallas Texans, will also figure in the only two non-Sunday day games among the 40 daylight contests listed.

The erstwhile Texans will host Denver for the Thanksgiving Day feature and will meet the New York Jets in a nationally televised day game in Kansas City Saturday, Dec. 14.

Louisville Lip Predicts Cooper Doomed in Fifth

By OSCAR FRALEY
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Cassius Clay was on the loquacious loose again today and Britain's William Shakespeare and Henry Cooper were warned to look to their respective laurels.

It is to be doubted that the rhyming Louisville Lip will get much attention from the English literati. But when the boy orator of the ring planes to London on Sunday for a June 18 engagement against Henry Cooper the British heavyweight champion will learn that he "will fall in five."

Proving that like the tiger, which he wasn't in his last outing Clay finds it difficult if not impossible to change his stripes.

Setting forth from Louisville for a foreign invasion he hopes will restore the tarnished luster of his predictive poetry, Cassius couldn't resist announcing:

"London Bridge is falling down, so will Cooper in London town. I am not talking jive, Cooper will fall in five."

There may be something wrong with the meter, if you're real hep to what the fight mob refers to as "peratry," but there can be nothing wrong with a suspicion that the mockingbird has regained his voice.

Yon Cassius has been singularly silent since March when a rival young gentleman named Doug Jones not only refused to fall in a predicted four rounds but very nearly clouted the gabby Clay to the canvas. Cassius won a 10-round decision but it was quite evident that he was lucky to register his 18th straight triumph. And there were some who tought that Jones had been Jesse Jamesed.

Clay allowed after the votes had been counted that it possibly would be a good thing henceforth and forevermore to forget poetic predictions.

Which, of course, was in his case akin to asking a rabbit to guard a head of lettuce.

"I'm the greatest," long has been his favorite expression and when a man is 21 you can expect near misses like the Jones escape to bounce off more briskly than hail from a hot stove.

Prior to his frantic exposure to Jones' talking fists, Cassius had declaimed that he undoubtedly could lower the boom on Sonny Liston in eight rounds and take Floyd Patterson in six heats.

He had qualifications, of a sort. In his most serious joust he had called the round against Archie Moore. In the light of subsequent developments, however, it was understandable why Archie at that point decided time finally had caught up to his reflexes and retired to all intents and purposes.

But, as some other poet once said, youth forgets quickly. So Cassius has brushed aside the annoying memory of Jones for another rhyming prognositication.

Cooper may be made to order. A couple of years back he decisioned Alex Miteff, a man Clay kayoed in six rounds. The British gladiator also was knocked out in two rounds by Zora Folley, who is not a fan dancer but a medium rare challenger in the heavyweight butcher shops.

Beating Cooper isn't going to have folks comparing Clay to John L. Sullivan. But if Cooper goes in five, batten down your ear drums because the windy one will be back in stride.

Southern Schools Favored In WAC Spring Title Chase

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Southern Division teams are favored to sweep all four titles as competition begins today in the Western Athletic Conference spring sports championships.

But no one will be surprised if there are some upsets.

Rating as only slight favorites are Arizona in baseball, Arizona State University in track and New Mexico in golf.

Northern Division champion Brigham Young University squares off against Arizona's Wildcats tonight in Tucson in the first of a three-game series to decide the baseball championship.

Arizona State will be banking on such stalwarts as 220-yard world record setter Henry Carr and a mile relay team with an equal claim to fame. Carr has done :20.4 and the relay 3:04.5.

Should the Sun Devil stars falter, depth-laden New Mexico or perhaps Arizona will be ready to take the title.

In tennis, Arizona's combination of Bill Lenoir and Joe Hernandez is considered the combo to beat.

Bears Belt Salt Lake Nine, 12-6

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Before the season started everyone said Oklahoma City, a newcomer to the Pacific Coast League, was the team to beat. Other clubs in the league have been doing just that, almost as a matter of course.

The 89ers were overwhelmed 10-3 Thursday night by Dallas-Fort Worth as they lost their fifth game in the last six attempts and slipped to within six percentage points of last place in the Southern Division.

The Rangers moved up to within half a game of San Diego, division leader, which was edged by Portland 1-0. Denver belted Salt Lake City 12-6 on 19 hits, including five by Chico Salmon, in the only other league game.

The Texan team barraged four Oklahoma pitchers with 14 hits and scored against all of them except Tom Borland, who came on in the eighth. Lee Stange went the distance for the Rangers and got strong slugging support from George Banks, who hit four for five, and Joe Christian, three for four.

Lew Krausse did most of the work for Portland. The 20-year-old right-hander held San Diego to two hits and accounted for half of the Beavers' four hits. He scored the game's only run by singling in the eighth inning, moving to third on Jay Hankins' double and coming home on a bunt.

Women Banned From Varsity Team Sports

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) —Women will not be allowed to participate in varsity team sports under new regulations appoved Thursday by athletic directors of the Western Athletic Conference.

The officials said the women could compete against women but not as members of regular varsity squads.

Some conferences now permit coeds to try out for various teams, such as tennis, golf and swimming.

The athletic directors also approved limiting WAC sports to the present approved list, thus erasing suggestions that skiing, water polo and lacrosse be added to the league program. The addition of these sports would be left to the individual schools.

Deficits from WAC spring sport championship events must be borne by the sponsoring school, the athletic directors said, but profits will go to cover expenses of the conference office.

Sooners, Nebraska Rate Top Billing in Big Eight

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG
Associated Press Sports Writer

Kansas and Oklahoma State sent the hopes of their fans soaring with impressive games to close spring practice but did little to change earlier views that Oklahoma and Nebraska rate 1-2 in Big Eight football.

Kansas swamped an alumni team which included John Hadl of San Diego, 33-0, with Steve Renko, a rookie quarterback, completing 8 of 16 passes for 135 yards and two touchdowns.

Oklahoma State's intra-squad game was a 20-17 victory for the Orange team over the Whites, with little Larry Elliott's 93-yard punt return the winning touchdown.

Coach Phil Cutchin admitted, "Sure, we did some sharp hitting, but we missed a lot of assignments, fumbled the ball at key situations and our pass defense over-all was below average."

"We still must improve but we probably will compete all the way in every game next season," said Cutchin.

Coach Jack Mitchell said it was silly to get excited about the Kansas victory because the varsity got some cheap touchdowns.

The other six conference teams ended spring practice before Kansas and Oklahoma State.

NFL Teams To Share In TV Loot

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — In the final session of the spring meeting of the National Football League here Thursday, league leaders said teams would receive equal distribution of the television money for the 1964-65 season.

The NFL owners discussed next spring's opening of bidding for the television contract for regular season games for all 14 clubs. The present two-year contract, held by the Columbia Broadcasting System, does not expire until the end of the 1963 season.

In ending the spring meeting, the league adopted a resolution in honor of Ernie Davis, Heisman Trophy winner and member of the Cleveland Browns, who died of leukemia last week.

League President Pete Rozelle announced earlier in the meeting that the Internal Revenue Service had approved the NFL's player pension plan.

Under estimated terms of the plan, a five-year NFL player would be eligible to receive monthly payments of $437 after he reaches age 65. A 10-year veteran would be entitled to $656 monthly and a 15-year man might receive $821 at 65.

President Opposed To School Spanking

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy believes in sparing the rod at school, but not at home.

When it comes to disciplining children, the President declares himself flatly against physical punishment in the schools.

However, he's for "very strong discipline at home," so the teachers won't have to carry the burden.

The President got into the school discipline issue now facing the capital when the subject was raised at his news conference Wednesday.

And, with his brief, but firm pronouncement, Kennedy probably signaled eventual defeat of efforts to permit corporal punishment of unruly pupils in District of Columbia schools.

His words indicate he could probably be expected to veto any such bill, though Pierre Salinger, White House press secretary, would not comment on the matter.

Recreation Pool Seen at Reservoir

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Interior Department has informed Congress it favors a plan to establish a permanent pool for recreation in the proposed Cochiti Reservoir, north of Albuquerque, N. M.

The department said it endorses a bill under which the secretary of interior could divert about 50,000 acre-feet of water from the San Juan-Chama Project to fill initially a permanent pool of 1,200 surface acres in one proposed reservoir.

Race Charge Junked In Florida Dispute

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—An attempt to void a special primary election on the theory that Negroes were not represented in the Florida Legislature has been rejected.

A three-judge federal court announced Thursday that it dismissed a suit by Ernest D. Jackson, Negro attorney.

Jackson, a candidate for the legislature, led the ticket in a first Democratic primary but was defeated by Tom Green, a white attorney, in the second primary.

Jackson contended that Negro residents of his district have no representation in the legislature.

The special federal court held that Jackson did not cite a claim upon which relief could be granted.

Barry May Raid South For Electoral Strength

By LYLE C. WILSON

Sen. Barry Goldwater's strategists could do worse than to book their man into Deep Dixie to give Southern voters a chance to sound off their political sentiments.

This would be a good idea because President Kennedy is just back from a Southern swing. Kennedy took a big chance in booking himself for personal appearances in an area where Democrats are reported in rebellion against the administration.

But Kennedy got away with it in fine style. A disturbing thought could be upsetting Republicans just now—a suspicion that they have over-estimated the Southern hate-Kennedy movement. Kennedy packed his charm and his presidential prestige for his journey into Deep Dixie. They were his safe conduct along with one or two other amulets.

Politicians will not agree on Kennedy's reception in Tennessee and Alabama, on what it did or did not signify. But one point was clear: The President was received with an abundance of courtesy and with much enthusiasm. No boos or Bronx cheers.

United Feaure Syndicate's acutely observant Mary McGrory somewhat discounted the warmth of the Alabama welcome. She wrote:

"President Kennedy's two speeches were delivered on federal property before crowds that are beholden to the federal government for their jobs and their livelihood."

That is a valid stipulation to be considered in any estimate of the political import of Kennedy's journey. But it does not apply to Kennedy's appearance in Nashville where 180,000 cheering citizens lined the curbs. His Vanderbilt University speech was well received despite the fact that he talked race relations to citizens whose city just had emerged from a period of shocking street violence.

Enthusiasm for Goldwater is enormous in the Republican party and it appears to be increasing. But even the most enthusiastic make no claims that their man could carry such big, fat states as New York and Pennsylvania.

The Goldwater strategy would be to raid the South for enough electoral votes to offset the loss of New York and Pennsylvania and others to Kennedy. They make a pretty good mathematical argument that Goldwater could lick Kennedy that way.

The southern states are vital to conservative Republican plans to nominate and to elect Goldwater or any other plainspoken opponent of basic Democratic party principles.

Hundreds of invitations to speak come to Goldwater every week. How would it be if he signed for a sequence of three or four Deep Dixie appearances? Republicans almost unroofed Georgia in 1960 when Richard M. Nixon showed in Atlanta.

Georgians should be given an early opportunity to show whether they can do as well or better for Barry Goldwater.

West Berliner Is Tricked by Guard

BERLIN (AP)—An East German border guard tricked a 24-yearold West Berliner into cut year-old West Berliner into cutting a barbed wire border barrier today and then arrested him, West Berlin police reported.

The incident reportedly occurred in the French sector suburb of Frohnau.

"The young man was at the border when a border guard called to him and told him he wanted to escape," a police spokesman said.

"The West Berliner cut a piece out of the fence. Then the border guard aimed his weapon at him and forced him to cut another fence. When he got through, he was arrested and taken away."

$7 Million Wheat Loss Being Claimed

LAMAR (UPI)—An agriculture official "conservatively" estimated Wednesday that farmers in Prowers, Kiowa and Baca counties would lose about $7 million because of the defeat of the wheat referendum Tuesday.

Oliver Ditson, office manager of the Prowers County division of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, made the estimate.

"This figure represents the accumulated losses from diverted acreage payments and certificates which would have been paid into the area whether wheat was produced or not," he said. "This does not include the loss incurred by the lower price support level. It is on wheat alone."

Prowers County approved the proposal, but it was defeated nationwide. It would have provided for stricted federal controls on wheat.

Accused Negro Spy Will Be Tried

NEW YORK (AP)—U.S. Navy Yeoman Nelson C. Drummond will be retried June 3 on charges of stealing secret documents from his post at the Newport, R.I., naval station and selling then to Soviet agents.

The Baltimore-born Negro—the first of his race to be tried for his life as a cold war spy—remained under $100,000 bail after his first trial ended in a hung jury Thursday.

The only Negro on the jury, Edward L. Watkins, 35, said he was the lone holdout, with the other 11 jurors voting for conviction. He said race had nothing to do with it and that he would have voted guilty on the conspiracy count in the indictment, which carried a possible penalty of life imprisonment, if the others had voted acquittal on the espionage count, which carried a possible death sentence.

Federal Judge Edward Weinfeld was obviously disappointed at the jury's failure to reach a verdict after 26 hours.

Drummond, 34, a stocky, mustached Navy veteran of 16 years, was accused of conspiring with soviet agents and attempting to transmit national defense documents to them.

GIRAFFE RODEO

NEW YORK (UPI) — One of the most colorful spectacles in South Africa is catching the giraffe, says Pan American World Airways. The giraffe is pursued on horseback and grabbed by the tail. While one man holds on to the tail, another slips a harness on the giraffe. A mild tranquilizer is then administered and the giraffe, more sleepy than frightened, is led into a waiting van.

There are about 103 species of starlings.

Haiti Steps Up Hunt for Rebels After Bombings

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (UPI)—Haitian police stepped upt heir efforts today to track down fugitive terrorist leader Clement Barbot, suspected of directing the latest bombings against Francois Duvalier's government.

Four blasts went off early Thursday morning in the vicinity of the Paraguay school in Port Au Prince.

Scattered pistol shots accompanied by shouts and the sounds of speeding cars followed the explosion.

Police cordoned off the school and it was not possible to determine the extent of damage or whether any of the peasants and militiamen temporarily housed there were injured.

Six persons were killed and several injured Tuesday night when the school was bombed along with three others.

All Haitian schools are in recess this month as part of the celebrations of "national gratitude" to Duvalier for continuing as president past the end of his legal term May 15.

The capital was completely tranquil during the daylight hours and Duvalier seemed to be in firm control of the nation despite the continued terrorism and international pressures against him.

(In Washington, the U.S. State Department summoned American Ambassador Raymond Thurston home from Port Au Prince today for consultations. Department spokesman Lincoln White said he did not know when or if Thurston would return to Haiti.)

The United States has been giving Duvalier the "sileht treatment" since his term expired May 15, in case it later decides to withdraw recognition on the grounds his rule became unconstitutional on that date. Only low-level informal contacts have been authorized between U.S. diplomats and the Haitian government.

Students Used To Get Evidence Against Taverns

DENVER (AP) — Disclosure that two Adams State College students may have been used as decoys to catch two Alamosa taverns accused of selling liquor to minors has brought protests from state officials.

Byron (Andy) Anderson, secretary of state, said, "It's the job of the liquor or law enforcement people to get this evidence. I don't mind telling you that I don't like it one bit."

Dale Dodd, a state liquor enforcement officer, and Alamosa Police Chief Nyle Langston confirmed that the students were used to gain evidence against the Victoria Bar and Scotty's Tavern.

Langston said an Adams State official cooperated in the venture.

But Dr. Lloyd Swenson, dean of students at the college, said all he knew was that four boys had been subpoenaed in liquor hearings. "I don't know if any of them were asked to be decoys," he said.

Langston said it was the first time since he has been police chief that students have been asked to help. He did not identify the students. Langston said they "may be taking a little heat," but he did not say from whom.

The tavern operators were to appear before Anderson today for possible revocation or suspension of their licenses. Two other Alamosa operators—Nazarios Restaurant and Lounge and Payless Liquors — also were to be heard on similar charges.

American railroads spent $374,077,000 on track, locomotive parts, machinery and other iron and steel articles in 1962. This was an increase of 12 per cent over the 1961 level.

Jackie Pung, Mickey Lead Dallas Open

DALLAS (UPI) — Jackie Pung, playing her first competitive golf since suffering a whiplash injury in an auto crash in February, swung alongside favorite Mickey Wright in front of the Dallas Civitan Women's Open tournament field today.

The 41-year-old Hawaiian-born Mrs. Pung and the 28-year-old Miss Wright, carried three-stroke leads into the second round after clipping four strokes off par with their 67's Thursday over the Glen Lakes Country Club course.

Their closest challenger among the 42-player contingent was tiny Clifford Ann Creed, the one-time Alexandria, La., school teacher who is in her first year as a pro.

Miss Creed's 35-35—70, fashioned from 17 pars and a 45-foot birdie putt, was the only other subpar score in the first round.

WOOD PIPING

CHICAGO (UPI)—Wood water pipes, 153 years old, were recently dug up from under Washington, D. C.'s Pennsylvania Avenue by the construction crew of a utility company.

The National Lumber Manufacturers Association said the pipes were well-preserved, 15-inch diameter logs of 10 feet in length with a neatly bored hole through the core. The logs were joined with cast-iron nipples that formed watertight joints by the swelling action of the wood.

Sheriff's Vehicle Damaged by Bull

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP)—Mike Tomkow's bull broke out of its pasture and started charging automobiles on Interstate Highway 4 a few miles north of Lakeland Thursday.

The sheriff's department sent Deputy Bob Coker to the scene with a rope and a utility vehicle.

HARVEY AND HIS CAT

SPRING VALLEY, N. Y. (AP) —Harvey Schiff put out the cat one night and the next morning could not find him. He was worried but started to work as usual in his car pool.

A couple of blocks from home one of the men in the car said, "Hey, Harvey, isn't that your cat walking along the road?" He said it was, they picked up the cat, returned to the Schiff house and Harvey put the cat in the living room.

When he returned home from work that evening, Mrs. Schiff said, "Harvey, our cat doesn't look well. His tail is droopy. I think you'd better take him to the vet for a distemper shot."

So Schiff and cat visited the vet and when he drove in his driveway, who did he see waiting on his porch?

His cat.

Armored Car Robber May Have Left U.S.

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP)—Police in this Canadian coastal city today explored the possibility that an armored car driver who disappeared with $325,000 may have taken a plane to Rio de Janeiro.

Authorities said Wednesday they had learned a man resembling Douglas John Brown, 35, bought a $1,400 ticket to Brazil Saturday night and paid for it in $20 bills. The missing money is in denominations of $1 to $20.

Authorities said the driver, who has been charged with grand theft, took more than $500,000 after making collections at several supermarkets Saturday. The loss was not discovered until Tuesday when he failel to report for work after two days off.

CAPITOL STUFF

By TED LEWIS

WASHINGTON — Only a fool would try to figure the probable impact of the Supreme Court's sitin decision on racial tensions developing in the south from organized Negro demonstrations such as those at Birmingham.

But officials incline to the view that there will be a general shift in strategy, on the part of both segregation and integration forces.

Martin Luther King, for example, is considered likely to make his next significant anti-discrimination moves in northern or border states where there are no segregation laws or ordinances and no public policy along that line.

This type of activity would be aimed at supplying the Supreme Court with cases in which the Constitutional issue was whether a restaurateur, or store or hotel owner, purely on volition, could exclude Negroes.

This poses a question which the court has yet to decide. What it did this week was to hold unconstitutional any law, ordinance or official statement by a state or city that makes segregation a policy. It also outlawed the use of police powers to enforce segregation in lunch counters and similar public establishments.

As for the effect of the decision on white supremacy forces in Dixie, the feeling is that they will move underground in a sense. There will be efforts to get around the court's edict, to make arrests in sitin cases on other grounds than trespass.

The greater fear is that the "Warren court" decision will get the long discredited Ku Klux Klan actively moving to force respect for "White Only" signs wherever city officials hesitate to act.

A HELPFUL EFFECT IS SEEN

The announcement by Gov. George C. Wallace today that he would physically block the admittance of any Negro to the University of Alabama was taken as a sign that the tempo of Southern tension has been increased by the court's action.

But in the opinion of the Justice Department, while the hothead segregationists like Wallace may rant louder, the court's action had a positive and helpful effect, particularly as it pertains to Birmingham. It was considered to have strengthened the case of the moderates and the merchant group that has been ready to desegregate lunch counters.

There is, however, no present intention of increasing or decreasing the federal force of 3,000 troops that President Kennedy ordered into Alabama after the Birmingham riots of May 11-12. They will be kept intact, probably for at least a month. Their presence is considered essential — not because of the possible impact of the court's decision but because they act as a restraint to any action by Gov. Wallace to enforce segregation in Birmingham.

The Supreme Court's sitin decision was not unexpected. But the more activist element in the battle for civil rights was definitely disappointed that the court did not decide at the same time the highly controversial issue of whether any private business serving the public anywhere among our 50 states could choose its customers on the basis of race, creed, or color.

The court may not follow the election returns these days— as Mr. Dooley said it once did—but it certainly decided that this issue, involving private prepety rights, was better put off until tomorrow — meaning next year.

Yet in the process, particularly through a dissent by Justice John Marshall Harlan and a concurring opinion by Justice William O. Douglas, it tipped off the nation to the fact it was moving toward an all-encompassing nondiscrimination decision.

Harlan stated the case for private property. Douglas held that "when the doors of a business are open to the public, they must be open to all regardless of race if apartheid is not to be engrained in our public places."

FREEDOM TO CHOOSE ASSOCIATES

Douglas further argued that a restaurant, for example, is "private property within the protection of the Fifth Amendment (but) has no aura of constitutionally protected privacy about it. Access by the public is the very reason for its existence."

Harlan stated the case for the other side with equal bluntness. What he said on this count was pretty much lost in the shuffle of the court's sitin ruling, so it needs to be brought out at this time. He agreed that within the court there was "a clash of competing constitutional claims of a high order: liberty and equality."

"Freedom of the individual to choose his associates or his neighbors, to use and dispose of his property as he sees fit, to be irrational, arbitrary, capricious, even unjust in his personal relations are things all entitled to a large measure of protection from governmental interference."

IT'S WHAT DOUGLAS SAID THAT COUNTS

This liberty, Harlan held, "would be overridden in the name of equality" if the court applied the non-discrimination rule the same way both to governmental and private action. "There are areas of private rights," he went on, "upon which federal power should not lay a heavy hand and which should properly be left to the more precise instruments of local authority."

But those familiar with the nuances by which the Supreme Court reaches such a decision as that leagalizing sitins are convinced that what Douglas said, rather than what Harlan argued, expressed the general mood of the court on the private property issue.

Not that the court next year won't temporize. The experts figure that it is groping toward a ruling which would not destroy the Constitutional rights of privacy of property but would still discourage the practice of racial discrimination of customers.

MAN BEHIND MACHINE

One girl received a monotonous schedule with several lunch periods; another had only one lunch period, but it was at 8:45 a.m.; a student who had flunked French I three times found himself promoted to French IV; and another student almost got away with a restful semester -- three study halls.
